UNUSUAL STATE OF AFFAIRS

From all appearances this city is on its good behavior, and the recent rigid investigation by the grand jury had a good effect on the law breakers of the city.

Strange to say the grand jury, which convenes at Lisbon on next Monday, will not have a case to investigate for violation of the liquor laws by the saloonists of this city. This is something almost without parallel in the history of grand juries, as it is a cold day when witnesses from this city are not called to tell what they know about saloon keepers who are keeping open after hours and on Sundays.

Of course the fact that no witnesses have been subpoenaed does not say that the saloon keepers are not violating the laws, but it goes to show that they are not doing it so openly as they formerly did.

Sheriff Noragon was in the city today serving summonses in a number of cases, but he did not have a witness on a liquor case in his list, which is not at all small.

JESS DELANEY

Returned to the City Yesterday And Contributed $14 60 to the City Coffers.

Jess Delaney, who was mixed up in the National House raid several months ago, but who left the city without calling on the mayor, returned home yesterday. She had not been here long until she had been arrested and taken before his honor, who fined her $14 60. She had the money and paid up and was at once released.

APPEALED A CASE.

The Suit of Alfred Peterson Versus John Carlson is Now in Common Pleas Court.

Lisbon, Jan. 24.—(Special).—The case of Alfred Peterson against John Carlson was filed here last evening from the docket of Squire McLane. The suit was brought by Peterson to recover $27 35 claimed to be due as money loaned to Carlson by him. Judgment was rendered in the lower court for the full amount and costs.

A SALOON FIGHT.

TWO DRUNKEN INDIVIDUALS HAD AN ALTERCATION.

They Lit on a Spittoon And Both Received Nasty Cuts.

A fight occurred in an uptown saloon last night in which a local saloonist was pretty badly used up.

A whisky runner named Johnson and a saloon keeper from down town got into an argument over a game of dice, which involved a dollar and the drinks for the house. They didn't argue long, but got down to business in a hurry. The pair clinched, and in the fall both parties got mixed up with the rail along the bar and a number of cuspidores, and each received severe cuts about the head and face. The whisky man was bald, and received a wound about an inch in length on the top of his head, while the local man had a nasty cut over the left eye. The combatants were taken to the toilet room, where their injuries were attended to and they were sent home.

POSTPONED.

The Butterine Case Set for Hearing This Morning Begun at 1 o'clock Today.

The case of the representative of the state dairy and food department against Edwin Oppelt, a local grocer, in which the latter is charged with selling impure butter, was up for a hearing before Justice McLane and a jury this morning, but owing to the inability of Attorney Thomas Steele, who represents the Columbus manufacturing concern that supplied the alleged impure product, to be present until noon, the case was continued until 1 o'clock.

Mr. Steele is a chemist in addition to being a lawyer and handles all the business of the butterine company.

The attorney will be accompanied by Manus O'Donnell, court stenographer of Columbus, who will take the testimony.

Judge Fawcett, of Canton, represents the local grocer, while the Capital City people have retained George E. Davidson to assist Attorney Steele.

PROMINENT MEN

Are Here Today in the Interests of the Candidacy of Attorney Henry W. Harter.

George H. Clark, A. M. McCarty, H. P. Webber and Henry W. Harter, of Canton, and D. E. Rodgers, of Alliance, were in the city today in the interests of the candidacy of Henry W. Harter for the common pleas judgeship of the Ninth Judicial district, of which Columbiana county is a part.

Judge McCarty's term will soon expire and the Stark county bar is a unit in supporting Mr. Harter, who is eminently qualified for the position to which he aspires.

WATCHING WHEAT.

The Farmers Are Very Much Afraid the Open Weather Will Kill the Crop.

Farmers are closely watching wheat and fear the open weather will ruin the crop.

Under the warm suns and rains of the winter, wheat has grown higher than usual, and if a cold snap, such as usually comes in February, will swoop down upon this section the crop will be damaged. Precautions taken last season have cut down the ravages of the fly, but the weather may be the disturbing element this year.

A St. Clair Township School Teachers Met With Some Resistance From Scholars.

SCHOOL WAS UP IN ARMS

When He Attempted to Chastise One of His Pupils but the Teacher

WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION

Thomas Croft, teacher at the Bell school, in St. Clair township, had a very exciting experience this week, and one he will not soon forget.

The young man had been hired to teach the term, and had not been in charge long when he discovered a disposition on the part of some of the male scholars to take the control out of his hands and run things to suit themselves. Now this is what Mr. Croft draws his salary for, or at least a part of it, so he made up his mind to get the credit for the same if there was any credit due.

One day this week he had a chance to demonstrate the fact that he was the whole thing, and did not fail to take advantage of the opportunity.

A young man named Birch had committed an offense that merited punishment, and the teacher proceeded to administer the dose in regulation style. But it was not all clear sailing, as the pupil, who is about 13 years of age, had a brother and a number of other friends who were ready for any emergency, and they immediately got into the teacher with the object in view of doing him up.

The youngsters evidently did not know their man, as, when the smoke of battle had cleared away it was discovered that the rebels had met defeat in its most humiliating form.

Young Birch and his brother were two of the most dilapidated looking individuals one would find in a day's travel, while the balance of the crowd were more or less used up. The teacher had used a cudgel and several other implements with good effect, and the lesson was one which the interested parties will not soon forget.

Mr. Croft is still in command, and it is not thought he will have any further trouble this term, although the parents of some of the parties assert they will have the teacher ousted.

OUR NEW RAILROAD.

PROMOTERS WILL HAVE CONFERENCE IN NEW YORK.

Preliminaries for the New Road Are Moving Along Very Nicely.

H. G. Folts, of the East Liverpool & Youngstown Railway company of Salem, came home from Cleveland Tuesday evening, where he has been on a matter of private business. Mr. Folts gave out a little information to a reporter on his arrival which shows that the affairs of the company regarding the preliminaries of the proposed railway are moving along nicely. The engineer has completed his outlines and maps of the surveys recently made, and the meeting of Messrs. Folts, of this city; Dwight, of Chicago, and Latimer, of Pittsburg, with the interested capitalists in New York is set for Thursday to be held in that city.

Mr. Dwight was in Chicago, however, the last word Mr. Folts had from him, and may not be able to reach New York in time for the conference Thursday. Mr. Folts went to Pittsburg yesterday, from which place he expected to proceed to New York in company with Messrs. Dwight and Latimer.

OLEOMARGINE CASE

IS NOW BEING HEARD AT CITY HALL.

A Large Audience is Present And the Case is Being Hotly Contested.

The oleomargarine case was called at 1 o'clock this afternoon to the following jury:

Smith Fowler, J. J. Welsend, G. W. Allison, Samuel Dixon, William Kinney, John Kerr, J. Rinehart, Matthew Anderson, M. H. Bough, S. C. Cartwright, J. E. Anderson and A. J. Moon.

When the case was opened Attorney Steele asked that the plea of not guilty be withdrawn and he immediately filed a demurrer to the affidavit, stating that it was not explicit enough in that it did not state of what the coloring consisted and for what purpose it was used.

A long argument followed and Squire McLane overruled the demurrer.

Harry Kratz, who is charged with selling oleomargarine with artificial coloring to Martin Cohen then pleaded not guilty to the charge.

At the time of going to press the case was still on.

New Plant for Waynesburg.

An effort is being made at Waynesburg, Pa., to build a plant for the manufacture of white ware, etc. It is said the plant will be backed by a capital stock of $50,000, and will be a chartered institution. The plans for this plant are being matured, and the fact that it is a go will likely be announced in the very near future.

Robbers Foiled by a Mayor.

Niles, O., Jan. 24.—Mayor Boynton, of Niles, has just exposed a big plot of a gang of Niles crooks to hold up Wells Fargo Express Agent Rein, of Youngstown, and relieve him of $30,000. Rein had been taking the money every two weeks to the Niles tin mill for wages of employees, and plans were all laid to waylay him after he left the train for the mill. The mayor heard of the plot and notified the express company and prevented the robbery.

Wing's Nomination Confirmed.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The senate confirmed the nomination of Francis J. Wing, of Ohio, to be United States district judge for the northern district of Ohio.

WEST END POTTERY COMPANY IS SUED

W. A. Calhoun Has Filed an Action In Common Pleas Court In Which

HE MAKES SOME STATEMENTS

Claims the Company Changed the Lock on the Door of the Office.

HE ASKS FOR FIVE THOUSAND

Lisbon, Jan. 24.—(Special).—William A. Calhoun, one of the stockholders of the West End Pottery company, of East Liverpool, entered suit last evening against the company and George W. Ashbaugh, William Burgess, Willis E. Cuning, C. C. Ashbaugh and W. H. Burgess, stockholders. Calhoun wants $5,000 damages and salary amounting to $3 a day, dating from April 1, 1899.

In June, 1896, he became a stockholder of the company, with the understanding with the other stockholders that he was to occupy the office of secretary and treasurer, for which he was to get $3 a day. Under this agreement he entered upon his duties and occupied the office until April 1, 1899, when without cause or legal authority he was removed and was succeeded by Charles Ashbaugh, who has since deprived him of his office.

He accuses the stockholders of conspiring and planning together to effect a scheme by which they could remove him from office, and when the action was taken it was not at any regularly called meeting, and was, therefore, null and void.

The defendants are accused of going so far in carrying out their nefarious scheme as to change the lock of the office door and changing the combination on the postoffice box in order to prevent the plaintiff from having access to the papers.

Calhoun also states that the stockholders removed the minute book from the safe and kept it several weeks, and when it was returned a number of loose sheets were missing which contained minutes of several meetings of the stockholders and directors.

It is further claimed that the defendants have refused to declare a dividend, although the pottery has been making money. Calhoun wants an injunction restraining the defendants from preventing him from having access to the books.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

Property Valued at Between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 Burned In Montreal, With Fire Yet Going.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—One of the most disastrous fires from which this city has ever suffered began at 8 o'clock last night, and notwithstanding the efforts of the entire fire department the progress of the flames was not checked until about 1 o'clock this morning. By that time it had destroyed property valued at between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000, and was still burning, though the appearance was that the firemen had at last got it under control.

Mr. Folts gave out a little information to a reporter on his arrival which shows that the affairs of the company regarding the preliminaries of the proposed railway are moving along nicely. The engineer has completed his outlines and maps of the surveys recently made, and the meeting of Messrs. Folts, of this city; Dwight, of Chicago, and Latimer, of Pittsburg, with the interested capitalists in New York is set for Thursday to be held in that city.

Mr. Dwight was in Chicago, however, the last word Mr. Folts had from him, and may not be able to reach New York in time for the conference Thursday. Mr. Folts went to Pittsburg yesterday, from which place he expected to proceed to New York in company with Messrs. Dwight and Latimer.

OLEOMARGINE CASE

IS NOW BEING HEARD AT CITY HALL.

A Large Audience is Present And the Case is Being Hotly Contested.

The oleomargarine case was called at 1 o'clock this afternoon to the following jury:

Smith Fowler, J. J. Weisend, G. W. Allison, Samuel Dixon, William Kinney, John Kerr, J. Rinehart, Matthew Anderson, M. H. Bough, S. C. Cartwright, J. E. Anderson and A. J. Moon.

When the case was opened Attorney Steele asked that the plea of not guilty be withdrawn and he immediately filed a demurrer to the affidavit, stating that it was not explicit enough in that it did not state of what the coloring consisted and for what purpose it was used.

A long argument followed and Squire McLane overruled the demurrer.

Harry Kratz, who is charged with selling oleomargarine with artificial coloring to Martin Cohen then pleaded not guilty to the charge.

At the time of going to press the case was still on.

New Plant for Waynesburg.

An effort is being made at Waynesburg, Pa., to build a plant for the manufacture of white ware, etc. It is said the plant will be backed by a capital stock of $50,000, and will be a chartered institution. The plans for this plant are being matured, and the fact that it is a go will likely be announced in the very near future.

Robbers Foiled by a Mayor.

Niles, O., Jan. 24.—Mayor Boynton, of Niles, has just exposed a big plot of a gang of Niles crooks to hold up Wells Fargo Express Agent Rein, of Youngstown, and relieve him of $30,000. Rein had been taking the money every two weeks to the Niles tin mill for wages of employees, and plans were all laid to waylay him after he left the train for the mill. The mayor heard of the plot and notified the express company and prevented the robbery.

Wing's Nomination Confirmed.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The senate confirmed the nomination of Francis J. Wing, of Ohio, to be United States district judge for the northern district of Ohio.

WEST END POTTERY COMPANY IS SUED

W. A. Calhoun Has Filed an Action In Common Pleas Court In Which

HE MAKES SOME STATEMENTS

Claims the Company Changed the Lock on the Door of the Office.

HE ASKS FOR FIVE THOUSAND

Lisbon, Jan. 24.—(Special.)—William A. Calhoun, one of the stockholders of the West End Pottery company, of East Liverpool, entered suit last evening against the company and George W. Ashbaugh, William Burgess, Willis E. Cuning, C. C. Ashbaugh and W. H. Burgess, stockholders. Calhoun wants $5,000 damages and salary amounting to $3 a day, dating from April 1, 1899.

In June, 1896, he became a stockholder of the company, with the understanding with the other stockholders that he was to occupy the office of secretary and treasurer, for which he was to get $3 a day. Under this agreement he entered upon his duties and occupied the office until April 1, 1899, when without cause or legal authority he was removed and was succeeded by Charles Ashbaugh, who has since deprived him of his office.

He accuses the stockholders of conniving and planning together to effect a scheme by which they could remove him from office, and when the action was taken it was not at any regularly called meeting, and was, therefore, null and void.

The defendants are accused of going so far in carrying out their nefarious scheme as to change the lock of the office door and changing the combination on the postoffice box in order to prevent the plaintiff from having access to the papers.

Calhoun also states that the stockholders removed the minute book from the safe and kept it several weeks, and when it was returned a number of loose sheets were missing which contained minutes of several meetings of the stockholders and directors.

It is further claimed that the defendants have refused to declare a dividend, although the pottery has been making money. Calhoun wants an injunction restraining the defendants from preventing him from having access to the books.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

Property Valued at Between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 Burned In Montreal, With Fire Yet Going.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—One of the most disastrous fires from which this city has ever suffered began at 8 o'clock last night, and notwithstanding the efforts of the entire fire department the progress of the flames was not checked until about 1 o'clock this morning. By that time it had destroyed property valued at between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000, and was still burning, though the appearance was that the firemen had at last got it under control.

RELIGIOUS PROGRESS IN CUBA.

Copyright 1901 Christian Herald.

Cuba is a changing country. I think that it is changing for the better. Certainly many of the changes that have taken place during the last two years have been for the better. Moreover, they have been of a kind to encourage those Americans who may be thinking of coming to the island and settling.

In reviewing a few of the things that have happened since the American flag went up on January 1, 1899, and the Spanish flag went down forever, one of the most important to me seems the complete freedom of religious worship. Of course, under the American flag there could be no union of church or state, as had been the case with the Spaniards. Up to that time a single Protestant congregation existed in Havana. This was the Baptist church, of which Dr. Diaz is the pastor, and which had managed to secure the concession of a cemetery for the burial of those outside the Catholic faith. Now there are several English speaking Protestant congregations, and chapels or missions are maintained by the Episcopalians, the Congregationalists, the Methodists, the Baptists, the Presbyterians and the Disciples. The Quakers also are established in a modest way.

All these Protestant churches do not content themselves simply with the holding of religious services on Sunday. They do a great deal of practical missionary work, and most of them hold services in Spanish as well as in English. They are not limited to Havana, because the other day in Matanzas I was told that the Methodist Episcopal church there owned its own house of worship, one of the first instances of that kind in the island.

Some political changes are going on, of which it is not necessary to treat now, except to express the belief that, while Cuba will have its own constitution and its own independent government, the moral support and the protection of the United States will never be entirely withdrawn from the new commonwealth, which may be known as the Republic of Cuba. The process of establishing this new commonwealth will be gradual, and its various steps can be followed as they are taken. There is no probability of a sudden and complete withdrawal of the American authority, and whatever may be the uncertainties of the future government, the protection of the United States always will be assured to its citizens in Cuba.

I write of this, because some letters which have reached me renew inquiries about the prospect for Americans securing homes in Cuba, the nature of the land titles and other matters. Some of these questions have been answered in the past, but the answers may be repeated in the light of the experience of those Americans who have established themselves in the island during the last three years. Scattered throughout the provinces there are a surprising number of those who have bought land and settled down as farmers. Some of these came with the soldiers, or as civil employes of the American officials, and had the best chance to pick out places for settling. Others got together some means, came down to look over the ground, and when they saw what suited them, they bought land. Some who were drawn into ill-advised projects of colonies and who suffered loss in consequence, yet had pluck enough to stay and make a home for themselves.

I want to emphasize the point about all, that those who are succeeding are the ones who have gone out into the country, and have not tried to make their fortunes in Havana, Santiago or the other cities. They have recognized the great truth that, since Cuba is one vast farm, the best chance for the newcomer is in farming. So they have got land, and one to raising fruits, vegetables, coffee, and in some cases sugar cane. I have noticed that the Chinese truck gardeners, who are so numerous around Havana, are no longer monopolizing the trade. Some Americans who went a little further out into the country and engaged in truck farming, are doing very well. Down at Guines, which is the real market garden of the island, and which raises great quantities of onions and Irish potatoes for the New York market, Americans are beginning to make headway. In quite a number of cases where they have gone to raising oranges, they are doing very well, though, of course, it will be two or three years yet before they can raise and market a crop. Americans also are doing well in pine apples; and in traveling around I have noticed some progress in dairy farming, and even an effort to raise hay and bale it for the market, after the American way.

These observations apply to the settled portions of the island, which, notwithstanding that they are settled, have much good land still uncultivated. The era also has begun of opening up the undeveloped portions of Cuba. The most important of these enterprises is the building of what is known as the Central, or Backbone railway, which will connect Havana with Santiago, at the southeastern end of the island, and which will have branches running to the ports on the north and south coasts. This has been undertaken by Sir William Van Horne, who carried out the project of the Canadian Pacific railway. He is supported by American, English and Canadian capitalists. An enterprise of this kind could be promoted only by men of large means, but in time the men of smaller means will be benefited, for they too will have the chance to acquire lands, and will be assured of the means of getting their products to market. Railroad building is only an incidental feature of the Van Horne project. Sir William told me that the immediate purpose is to open up the undeveloped resources by establishing sugar plantations, fruit farms and the like. The scene of operations will be in the eastern part of Santa Clara province, and in Puerto Principe and Santiago.

While, as I stated, this railway project will be of great benefit to Cuba, and while later it will be a means of encouraging American immigration, for the immediate future I should not advise those who are thinking of making homes in Cuba to depend upon it. They will do well in Cuba to keep closer to the cities and ports which already are within reach. Naturally this means that they will have to pay more for their lands than by going further into the interior, where the country is yet entirely undeveloped; but I think that they will succeed better. I believe a man with $5,000 capital will be able to turn it over quicker in a part of the island where land may cost from fifteen to twenty-five dollars an acre, than by going to the undeveloped section, where he can buy it at from three to five dollars an acre. That is to say, two hundred acres in the more settled sections will yield him better for the first few years than a thousand acres in the undeveloped regions.

About the climate it is now possible to speak with more certainty than a year or two ago, for there are many Americans who have passed their third summer in the island. Their general verdict is that the climate of Cuba need not bar persons from northern countries from settling in the island. After a few years they will not work with the same fierce energy that usually characterizes them when they arrive from the temperate zone, but they will know how to adapt themselves to the climate and to the tropical modes of living and working. There is everything in that knowledge. It is harvest season all the year round in Cuba, and work can be done in the fields in the early morning almost every day in the year. On the sugar plantations the workers are astir at 4 or 5 in the morning, and they are able to put in a half day's work before the sun becomes too hot for comfort. That is the real secret of working in the tropics, to do it at the right hours of the morning and evening, and to work quietly and steadily, but not at a driving pace, which destroys the energies without increasing the output of a man's labor.

OUR NEW LIGHTS.

They Will be Here the Middle of Next Month And Are First Class.

It will not be very long until this city has a whole system of electric lights, as the contract with the General Electrical company of Schenectady, N. Y., has been made and the lights will be here by the middle of next month. Twelve lights will be here at once, and will be used to replace lights that cannot be made to work.

The new lights are closed like the present lights, but it is expected they will prove very satisfactory.

DOUBT CANNOT EXIST.

Investigation Will Only Strengthen the Proof We Give in East Liverpool.

There must be something stronger than imagination behind expressions of such representative citizens of East Liverpool as Mr. Robert McNewell, carpenter, of West Fifth street, who says: "If every one receives the same results as I from the course of treatment prescribed by Doan's Kidney Pills, my advice is, go to Larkins' drug store, procure a box, take them according to directions and the results will inevitably follow. One box effected a cure in my case, the particulars of which I will only be too pleased to give to any one personally calling upon me."

Section 2. That the owners of the said several lots of land herein assessed shall pay the annual installments of their said assessments to the City Clerk or on before the first (1) day of September of each year of the said several years as above set forth, or be subject to interest and penalty as allowed by law, and in case of default of payment as herein provided, the City Clerk shall forthwith certify all unpaid assessments to the County Auditor, to be placed on the tax duplicate for collection.

Section 3. That in anticipation of the collection of such assessments and to provide money for the immediate payment of the cost and expense of the said improvement, the Mayor and City Clerk be, and they are hereby authorized to issue five (5) bonds as follows: One (1) bond for the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-seven ($1627) dollars, to run one (1) year from the day of the date thereof; one (1) bond for the sum of seventeen hundred and twenty-five ($1725) dollars, to run two (2) years from the day of the date thereof; one (1) bond for the sum of eighteen hundred and twenty-nine ($1829) dollars, to run three (3) years from the day of the date thereof; one bond for the sum of nineteen hundred and thirty-eight ($1938) dollars, to run four (4) years from the day of the date thereof; one (1) bond for the sum of twenty hundred and fifty-four ($2054) dollars, to run five years, from the day of the date thereof. The said bonds shall be designated "Fourth Street Improvement Bonds," and shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, payable annually. The said bonds, with the interest thereon, shall be payable at the City and sold by them under the direction of the Finance Committee for not less than the par value thereof. The proceeds of the sale of the said bonds, when received, shall be placed in the city treasury and applied by Council to pay the cost and expense of the said improvement, and to no other purpose whatsoever, and for the real estate and personal property of said city are hereby pledged; provided, that, if, before the execution of said bonds, any of the property owners shall pay the full amount of the annual assessments in cash, less the interest included therein, the improvement, and bonds shall be issued for the unpaid remainder of the total amount of money to be provided, payable with interest at the times and in manner aforesaid.

Section 4. That the said annual assessments, when collected shall be placed in the sinking fund and applied to the payment of the said bonds with the interest thereon, as the same shall become due, and to no other purpose whatsoever.

Section 5. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and legal publication.

Passed this eighth (8) day of January, 1901.

Attest
J. N. HANLEY, City Clerk.

RELIGIOUS PROGRESS IN CUBA.

Copyright 1901 Christian Herald.

Cuba is a changing country. I think that it is changing for the better. Certainly many of the changes that have taken place during the last two years have been for the better. Moreover, they have been of a kind to encourage those Americans who may be thinking of coming to the island and settling.

In reviewing a few of the things that have happened since the American flag went up on January 1, 1899, and the Spanish flag went down forever, one of the most important to me seems the complete freedom of religious worship. Of course, under the American flag there could be no union of church or state, as had been the case with the Spaniards. Up to that time a single Protestant congregation existed in Havana. This was the Baptist church, of which Dr. Diaz is the pastor, and which had managed to secure the concession of a cemetery for the burial of those outside the Catholic faith. Now there are several English speaking Protestant congregations, and chapels or missions are maintained by the Episcopalians, the Congregationalists, the Methodists, the Baptists, the Presbyterians and the Disciples. The Quakers also are established in a modest way.

All these Protestant churches do not content themselves simply with the holding of religious services on Sunday. They do a great deal of practical missionary work, and most of them hold services in Spanish as well as in English. They are not limited to Havana, because the other day in Matanzas I was told that the Methodist Episcopal church there owned its own house of worship, one of the first instances of that kind in the island.

Some political changes are going on, of which it is not necessary to treat now, except to express the belief that, while Cuba will have its own constitution and its own independent government, the moral support and the protection of the United States will never be entirely withdrawn from the new commonwealth, which may be known as the Republic of Cuba. The process of establishing this new commonwealth will be gradual, and its various steps can be followed as they are taken. There is no probability of a sudden and complete withdrawal of the American authority, and whatever may be the uncertainties of the future government, the protection of the United States always will be assured to its citizens in Cuba.

I write of this, because some letters which have reached me renew inquiries about the prospect for Americans securing homes in Cuba, the nature of the land titles and other matters. Some of these questions have been answered in the past, but the answers may be repeated in the light of the experience of those Americans who have established themselves in the island during the last three years. Scattered throughout the provinces there are a surprising number of those who have bought land and settled down as farmers. Some of these came with the soldiers, or as civil employes of the American officials, and had the best chance to pick out places for settling. Others got together some means, came down to look over the ground, and when they saw what suited them, they bought land. Some who were drawn into ill-advised projects of colonies and who suffered loss in consequence, yet had pluck enough to stay and make a home for themselves.

I want to emphasize the point about all, that those who are succeeding are the ones who have gone out into the country, and have not tried to make their fortunes in Havana, Santiago or the other cities. They have recognized the great truth that, since Cuba is one vast farm, the best chance for the newcomer is in farming. So they have got land, and one to raising fruits, vegetables, coffee, and in some cases sugar cane. I have noticed that the Chinese truck gardeners, who are so numerous around Havana, are no longer monopolizing the trade. Some Americans who went a little further out into the country and engaged in truck farming, are doing very well. Down at Guines, which is the real market garden of the island, and which raises great quantities of onions and Irish potatoes for the New York market, Americans are beginning to make headway. In quite a number of cases where they have gone to raising oranges, they are doing very well, though, of course, it will be two or three years yet before they can raise and market a crop. Americans also are doing well in pine apples; and in traveling around I have noticed some progress in dairy farming, and even an effort to raise hay and bale it for the market, after the American way.

These observations apply to the settled portions of the island, which, notwithstanding that they are settled, have much good land still uncultivated. The era also has begun of opening up the undeveloped portions of Cuba. The most important of these enterprises is the building of what is known as the Central, or Backbone railway, which will connect Havana with Santiago, at the southeastern end of the island, and which will have branches running to the ports on the north and south coasts. This has been undertaken by Sir William Van Horne, who carried out the project of the Canadian Pacific railway. He is supported by American, English and Canadian capitalists. An enterprise of this kind could be promoted only by men of large means, but in time the men of smaller means will be benefited, for they too will have the chance to acquire lands, and will be assured of the means of getting their products to market. Railroad building is only an incidental feature of the Van Horne project. Sir William told me that the immediate purpose is to open up the undeveloped resources by establishing sugar plantations, fruit farms and the like. The scene of operations will be in the eastern part of Santa Clara province, and in Puerto Principe and Santiago.

While, as I stated, this railway project will be of great benefit to Cuba, and while later it will be a means of encouraging American immigration, for the immediate future I should not advise those who are thinking of making homes in Cuba to depend upon it. They will do well in Cuba to keep closer to the cities and ports which already are within reach. Naturally this means that they will have to pay more for their lands than by going further into the interior, where the country is yet entirely undeveloped; but I think that they will succeed better. I believe a man with $5,000 capital will be able to turn it over quicker in a part of the island where land may cost from fifteen to twenty-five dollars an acre, than by going to the undeveloped section, where he can buy it at from three to five dollars an acre. That is to say, two hundred acres in the more settled sections will yield him better for the first few years than a thousand acres in the undeveloped regions.

About the climate it is now possible to speak with more certainty than a year or two ago, for there are many Americans who have passed their third summer in the island. Their general verdict is that the climate of Cuba need not bar persons from northern countries from settling in the island. After a few years they will not work with the same fierce energy that usually characterizes them when they arrive from the temperate zone, but they will know how to adapt themselves to the climate and to the tropical modes of living and working. There is everything in that knowledge. It is harvest season all the year round in Cuba, and work can be done in the fields in the early morning almost every day in the year. On the sugar plantations the workers are astir at 4 or 5 in the morning, and they are able to put in a half day's work before the sun becomes too hot for comfort. That is the real secret of working in the tropics, to do it at the right hours of the morning and evening, and to work quietly and steadily, but not at a driving pace, which destroys the energies without increasing the output of a man's labor.

OUR NEW LIGHTS.

They Will be Here the Middle of Next Month And Are First Class.

It will not be very long until this city has a whole system of electric lights, as the contract with the General Electrical company of Schenectady, N. Y., has been made and the lights will be here by the middle of next month. Twelve lights will be here at once, and will be used to replace lights that cannot be made to work.

The new lights are closed like the present lights, but it is expected they will prove very satisfactory.

DOUBT CANNOT EXIST.

Investigation Will Only Strengthen the Proof We Give in East Liverpool.

There must be something stronger than imagination behind expressions of such representative citizens of East Liverpool as Mr. Robert McNewell, carpenter, of West Fifth street, who says: "If every one receives the same results as I from the course of treatment prescribed by Doan's Kidney Pills, my advice is, go to Larkins' drug store, procure a box, take them according to directions and the results will inevitably follow. One box effected a cure in my case, the particulars of which I will only be too pleased to give to any one personally calling upon me."

ORDINANCE NO. 662.

An ORDINANCE to assess a special tax on the real estate bounding and abutting on Fourth street from Market street to West street, and to issue bonds in anticipation of the collection of the said assessments.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, as follows: Section 1. That to provide money to pay the cost and expense of improving Fourth street from Market street to West street, together with the interest on bonds issued according to the estimate of the engineer on file, there be levied and assessed on each of the several lots and lands abutting and bounding on Fourth street between the points above named, for each foot of frontage of each of the said several lots, for each and every year as hereinafter named, the several sums as they are stated and set forth in the following

RELIGIOUS PROGRESS IN CUBA.

Copyright 1901 Christian Herald.

Cuba is a changing country. I think that it is changing for the better. Certainly many of the changes that have taken place during the last two years have been for the better. Moreover, they have been of a kind to encourage those Americans who may be thinking of coming to the island and settling.

In reviewing a few of the things that have happened since the American flag went up on January 1, 1899, and the Spanish flag went down forever, one of the most important to me seems the complete freedom of religious worship. Of course, under the American flag there could be no union of church or state, as had been the case with the Spaniards. Up to that time a single Protestant congregation existed in Havana. This was the Baptist church, of which Dr. Diaz is the pastor, and which had managed to secure the concession of a cemetery for the burial of those outside the Catholic faith. Now there are several English speaking Protestant congregations, and chapels or missions are maintained by the Episcopalians, the Congregationalists, the Methodists, the Baptists, the Presbyterians and the Disciples. The Quakers also are established in a modest way.

All these Protestant churches do not content themselves simply with the holding of religious services on Sunday. They do a great deal of practical missionary work, and most of them hold services in Spanish as well as in English. They are not limited to Havana, because the other day in Matanzas I was told that the Methodist Episcopal church there owned its own house of worship, one of the first instances of that kind in the island.

Some political changes are going on, of which it is not necessary to treat now, except to express the belief that, while Cuba will have its own constitution and its own independent government, the moral support and the protection of the United States will never be entirely withdrawn from the new commonwealth, which may be known as the Republic of Cuba. The process of establishing this new commonwealth will be gradual, and its various steps can be followed as they are taken. There is no probability of a sudden and complete withdrawal of the American authority, and whatever may be the uncertainties of the future government, the protection of the United States always will be assured to its citizens in Cuba.

I write of this, because some letters which have reached me renew inquiries about the prospect for Americans securing homes in Cuba, the nature of the land titles and other matters. Some of these questions have been answered in the past, but the answers may be repeated in the light of the experience of those Americans who have established themselves in the island during the last three years. Scattered throughout the provinces there are a surprising number of those who have bought land and settled down as farmers. Some of these came with the soldiers, or as civil employes of the American officials, and had the best chance to pick out places for settling. Others got together some means, came down to look over the ground, and when they saw what suited them, they bought land. Some who were drawn into ill-advised projects of colonies and who suffered loss in consequence, yet had pluck enough to stay and make a home for themselves.

I want to emphasize the point about all, that those who are succeeding are the ones who have gone out into the country, and have not tried to make their fortunes in Havana, Santiago or the other cities. They have recognized the great truth that, since Cuba is one vast farm, the best chance for the newcomer is in farming. So they have got land, and one to raising fruits, vegetables, coffee, and in some cases sugar cane. I have noticed that the Chinese truck gardeners, who are so numerous around Havana, are no longer monopolizing the trade. Some Americans who went a little further out into the country and engaged in truck farming, are doing very well. Down at Guines, which is the real market garden of the island, and which raises great quantities of onions and Irish potatoes for the New York market, Americans are beginning to make headway. In quite a number of cases where they have gone to raising oranges, they are doing very well, though, of course, it will be two or three years yet before they can raise and market a crop. Americans also are doing well in pine apples; and in traveling around I have noticed some progress in dairy farming, and even an effort to raise hay and bale it for the market, after the American way.

These observations apply to the settled portions of the island, which, notwithstanding that they are settled, have much good land still uncultivated. The era also has begun of opening up the undeveloped portions of Cuba. The most important of these enterprises is the building of what is known as the Central, or Backbone railway, which will connect Havana with Santiago, at the southeastern end of the island, and which will have branches running to the ports on the north and south coasts. This has been undertaken by Sir William Van Horne, who carried out the project of the Canadian Pacific railway. He is supported by American, English and Canadian capitalists. An enterprise of this kind could be promoted only by men of large means, but in time the men of smaller means will be benefited, for they too will have the chance to acquire lands, and will be assured of the means of getting their products to market. Railroad building is only an incidental feature of the Van Horne project. Sir William told me that the immediate purpose is to open up the undeveloped resources by establishing sugar plantations, fruit farms and the like. The scene of operations will be in the eastern part of Santa Clara province, and in Puerto Principe and Santiago.

While, as I stated, this railway project will be of great benefit to Cuba, and while later it will be a means of encouraging American immigration, for the immediate future I should not advise those who are thinking of making homes in Cuba to depend upon it. They will do well in Cuba to keep closer to the cities and ports which already are within reach. Naturally this means that they will have to pay more for their lands than by going further into the interior, where the country is yet entirely undeveloped; but I think that they will succeed better. I believe a man with $5,000 capital will be able to turn it over quicker in a part of the island where land may cost from fifteen to twenty-five dollars an acre, than by going to the undeveloped section, where he can buy it at from three to five dollars an acre. That is to say, two hundred acres in the more settled sections will yield him better for the first few years than a thousand acres in the undeveloped regions.

About the climate it is now possible to speak with more certainty than a year or two ago, for there are many Americans who have passed their third summer in the island. Their general verdict is that the climate of Cuba need not bar persons from northern countries from settling in the island. After a few years they will not work with the same fierce energy that usually characterizes them when they arrive from the temperate zone, but they will know how to adapt themselves to the climate and to the tropical modes of living and working. There is everything in that knowledge. It is harvest season all the year round in Cuba, and work can be done in the fields in the early morning almost every day in the year. On the sugar plantations the workers are astir at 4 or 5 in the morning, and they are able to put in a half day's work before the sun becomes too hot for comfort. That is the real secret of working in the tropics, to do it at the right hours of the morning and evening, and to work quietly and steadily, but not at a driving pace, which destroys the energies without increasing the output of a man's labor.

OUR NEW LIGHTS.

They Will be Here the Middle of Next Month And Are First Class.

It will not be very long until this city has a whole system of electric lights, as the contract with the General Electrical company of Schenectady, N. Y., has been made and the lights will be here by the middle of next month. Twelve lights will be here at once, and will be used to replace lights that cannot be made to work.

The new lights are closed like the present lights, but it is expected they will prove very satisfactory.

DOUBT CANNOT EXIST.

Investigation Will Only Strengthen the Proof We Give in East Liverpool.

There must be something stronger than imagination behind expressions of such representative citizens of East Liverpool as Mr. Robert McNewell, carpenter, of West Fifth street, who says: "If every one receives the same results as I from the course of treatment prescribed by Doan's Kidney Pills, my advice is, go to Larkins' drug store, procure a box, take them according to directions and the results will inevitably follow. One box effected a cure in my case, the particulars of which I will only be too pleased to give to any one personally calling upon me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

Section 2. That the owners of the said several lots of land herein assessed shall pay the annual installments of their said assessments to the City Clerk or on before the first (1) day of September of each year of the said several years as above set forth, or be subject to interest and penalty as allowed by law, and in case of default of payment as herein provided, the City Clerk shall forthwith certify all unpaid assessments to the County Auditor, to be placed on the tax duplicate for collection.

Section 3. That in anticipation of the collection of such assessments and to provide money for the immediate payment of the cost and expense of the said improvement, the Mayor and City Clerk be, and they are hereby authorized to issue five (5) bonds as follows: One (1) bond for the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-seven ($1627) dollars, to run one (1) year from the day of the date thereof; one (1) bond for the sum of seventeen hundred and twenty-five ($1725) dollars, to run two (2) years from the day of the date thereof; one (1) bond for the sum of eighteen hundred and twenty-three ($1823) dollars, to run three (3) years from the day of the date thereof; one bond for the sum of nineteen hundred and thirty-eight ($1938) dollars, to run four (4) years from the day of the date thereof; one (1) bond for the sum of twenty hundred and fifty-four ($2054) dollars, to run five years from the day of the date thereof. The said bonds shall be designated "Fourth Street Improvement Bonds," and shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, payable annually. The said bonds, with the interest thereon, shall be payable at the City Treasurer's Office. The said bonds shall be signed by the aforesaid city officials, and sold by them under the direction of the Finance Committee, for not less than the par value thereof. The proceeds of the sale of the said bonds, when received, shall be placed in the city treasury and applied by Council to pay the cost and expense of the said improvement, and to no other purpose whatsoever, and for the payment of the said bonds with the interest thereon, the revenue and faith and all the real estate and personal property of said city are hereby pledged; provided, that, if, before the execution of said bonds, any of the property owners shall pay the full amount of the annual assessments in cash, less the interest included therein, the improvement, and bonds shall be issued for the unpaid remainder of the total amount of money to be provided, payable with interest at the times and in manner aforesaid.

Section 4. That the said annual assessments, when collected shall be placed in the sinking fund and applied to the payment of the said bonds with the interest thereon, as the same shall become due, and to no other purpose whatsoever.

Section 5. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and legal publication.

Passed this eighth (8) day of January, 1901.

Editor News Review—The first meeting of the Students' League of Columbus was held last Tuesday night in the First Congregational church. All of the universities and colleges of the city are represented in this league, and considerable interest is felt in its success. The program Tuesday night consisted of musical numbers and an address by Dr. Gladden, describing his college days and contrasting them with the life of the student today.

The agricultural students' union of Ohio held its seventh annual meeting in Lounshead hall, State University, Thursday evening. The program consisted of reports from the various directors, on the different phases of agriculture, and concluded with an address on "Agricultural Technique," by Prof. J. F. Hickman.

The election of officers was held at the close of the meeting, with the following choice of officers: L. H. Goddard, Minerva, president; W. H. Gilmore, Millersport, vice president; W. D. Gibbs, Columbus, secretary-treasurer, and A. D. Selby, experimentalist. The old board of division directors was reappointed.

The Ohio State Dairy association will meet at the State University on February 6, 7 and 8. Dr. H. L. Russell, bacteriologist of the Wisconsin experimental station, will deliver a stereopticon in the university on the evening of February 6.

The Tile men of Ohio will hold their annual meeting in the council chamber here on February 19 and 20. This meeting promises to be the biggest session in the history of the organization, and papers will be read by the prominent men of the association.

Ohio State University is having considerable trouble over the election of a base ball captain. At a recent meeting the last year's captain was re-elected, but the athletic committee refused to ratify the election. Another election was held, which resulted in a tie between the candidates. It is claimed that fraternity influence is exerted in these elections, and several members of last year's team state that they will not play if the man supported by this secret element is elected. The athletic board will decide the tie vote at its next meeting.

Prof. Wendling, of the University of Michigan, will speak at convocation next Wednesday, and on the first convocation of the second Semester, President Thompson will speak on Lincoln.

The junior class met last Friday to arrange for their annual hop and to elect a historian. The date for the hop was fixed for February 15. Among the members of the social committee which will have charge of it is J. W. McGarry, a junior law and an East Liverpool man.

LIES IN CHAPEL.

Body of the Dead Queen Before an Altar.

MAY STAY SOME DAYS.

Services Were to Be Held Today In Presence of Royal Family.

NEW KING ENTERED LONDON.

Edward VII Attended the Privy Council, at St. James Palace—Members of the House of Commons and House of Lords Took Oath of Allegiance—More Details of the Last Sad Death Scene—The Early Cablegram of Condolence of President McKinley Received With Great Satisfaction—Some Newspaper Comment.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 24.—The body of the late queen lies in a simple coffin in the Chapelle Ardente, festooned with red and white hangings. The bishop of Winchester, standing before an altar removed for the occasion from the private chapel, today was to read a portion of the service for the dead, in the presence of certain members of the royal family.

Body In Front of an Altar.

The coffin rests upon a specially erected platform, draped with royal purple, the feet lying to the east. The head faces the simple altar. Over the features is a thin veil.

For a few hours after the conclusion of this service the public will be admitted to the room and allowed to review the remains of the sovereign who so long ruled over them. The body will rest there until Sunday, and probably no removal will occur for 10 days.

The correspondent of the Associated Press learns that the cause of the queen's death as officially given was "senile decay."

Details of the dying hours were not obtainable until late last evening. It appears that the queen was moved on Sunday from her big bed into a small cot, specially built with springs, which was surrounded by a screen. This was to enable the doctors to reach the patient easily on both sides, which was impossible when she lay in a bed six feet wide. In this small bed she passed away.

When Emperor William arrived he rushed without taking off his overcoat to her bedside, and the first words he said were words of regret that his mother was unable to come. "Yes," murmured the queen, "I wish 'Vicky' could be here," using a pet name of her eldest daughter.

On Tuesday afternoon all the members of the family were in readiness for the end. At 4 the Prince of Wales was summoned. Half an hour later he was joined by the other members of the family. About 5 o'clock the Duchess of York arrived and the queen kissed her, saying "I am glad you have come."

The Bishop Began to Pray.

The bishop of Winchester began to pray. The queen slowly sank into unconsciousness. About 6:15 p. m. the end was thought to have come. The Prince of Wales and several others walked out of the room.

But the vitality of the queen once more won the day. For about 15 minutes, with only the Princess of Wales and a few others present, the feeble spark of life was maintained by kind Providence. About 6:30, with Emperor William, the Prince of Wales and the others absent, death actually came.

Death has softened the face and the thin veil conceals no terrible defects. The hand of the mighty leveler dealt with her lovingly, and, as the last visitation of nature has been mercifully mitigated, so also have been the pomp and glory which accompany the succession of the king. Tuesday night neither he nor his wife would allow their entourage to address them by their correct titles.

Messengers of condolence came from different quarters of the world. President McKinley's early cablegram created a most favorable impression. It was handed around among the royal personages at breakfast yesterday morning, with the general comment that American sympathy was fitly the first to be received.

London, Jan. 24.—The king-emperor entered his capital at about 2:55 p. m., Wednesday, and proceeded to Marlborough house.

The king attended a meeting of the privy council about 2 o'clock and took the title of Edward VII, king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. The public proclamation of the accession was to be made about 10 o'clock today, when his majesty will proceed to the house of lords for the meeting of parliament.

The king drove to St. James palace, from Marlborough house, to reside at the first privy council, by way of Marlborough house yard, the Mall and the garden entrance of the palace. He was attended by Lord Suffolk (who has been lord of the bed chamber of the Prince of Wales since 1872), and was escorted by a captain's escort of the horse guards. The procedure was exactly as on previous days.

Crepe on Their Left Arm.

By the time the king arrived a great gathering of privy councillors, in levee dress, with crepe on their left arms, had taken up positions in the throne room—cabinet ministers, peer commoners, bishops, judges, the lord mayor, etc., including the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught and other members of the royal family.

Lord Salisbury, Lord Rosebery, A. J. Balfour, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, and a host of the most prominent personages in the land were there to receive the king's formal oath, binding him to govern the kingdom according to its laws and customs, and hear him assume the title of King Edward VII of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India.

The ceremony was interesting and according to precedent. The king was in a separate apartment from the privy councillors. To the latter the Duke of Devonshire, lord president of the council, formally communicated the death of Queen Victoria and the succession to the throne of her son, the Prince of Wales. The royal dukes, with certain lords of the council, were then directed to repair to the king's presence to acquaint him with the terms of the lord president's statement. Shortly afterward his majesty entered the room in which the councillors were assembled and addressed them in a brief speech. The lord chancellor (Lord Halsbury) then administered the oath of the king. Afterward the various members of the council took the oath of allegiance and then passed in turn before his majesty, as at a levee, excepting that each paused and kissed the king's hand before passing out of the chamber. This brought the ceremony to a close.

By about 3:30 p. m., when his majesty returned to Marlborough house, the crowd in the neighborhood was of immense proportions. The king's prior journey was accomplished in almost complete silence, but on this occasion he was lustily cheered all along the line of route. Immediately opposite Marlborough house gates a tall gentleman, in front of the crowd, waved his hat and shouted: "Long live the king," whereupon the crowd cheered with redoubled vigor.

Took the Oath of Allegiance.

The house of lords and the house of commons assembled about 4 o'clock and took the oath of allegiance to the new sovereign. The attendance in the house of commons was large. All the members, dressed in the deepest mourning, stood up as Speaker Gully entered and announced that, by reason of the deeply lamented decease of her majesty, Queen Victoria, it had become their duty to take the oath of allegiance to her successor, his majesty, King Edward VII. The speaker then administered the oath and the swearing in of the members proceeded. Joseph Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies; Sir Michael Hicks Beach, the chancellor of exchequer; Sir Harry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the house, and Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, were the first to subscribe their names on the roll.

In the house of lords the oath was taken by the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught, Earl Roberts, Lord Rosebery, Lord Salisbury, the Duke of Argyll, Lord Lansdowne and some others.

London, Jan. 24.—The morning papers record with the greatest satisfaction that the king has taken the title of Edward VII. They are filled from end to end with descriptions of yesterday's ceremonies, and accounts of the reception of the news of the death throughout the kingdom and throughout the entire world. King Edward's first speech is also applauded.

The Daily Telegraph says: "It was admirable, resolute, touching and breathing deep sincerity. It does equal honor to the monarch and the man, and will carry a fresh sense of hope and confidence to the country in its trouble."

King Edward will return to Osborne immediately after the ceremony today.

Among the innumerable telegrams of sympathy that continue pouring in from abroad President McKinley's gives the greatest pleasure. The Daily Chronicle remarks:

Praise For President's Dispatch.

"It is believed that President McKinley's dispatch was the first to reach the Prince of Wales under his new title, and just as Frederick the Great was the first European sovereign to recognize the independence of the United States, so now the president of the great republic has been the first to acknowledge the kingship of the great grandson of the monarch against whose authority the American colonists successfully rebelled."

"This is very touching when one remembers the visit of the Prince of Wales to Washington's tomb. Probably it was some remembrance of that incident which made President McKinley hasten to be the first to salute the Prince of Wales as king, and the compliment, we are told, was most keenly appreciated."

The Standard said: "It is not for mere show that the Americans have received the news of the death of Queen Victoria as a bereavement of their own and commented upon it in terms such as they would employ in the case of an honored president dying in office."

Respect Shown at Manila.

The procedure was exactly as on levee days.

Crepe on Their Left Arm.

By the time the king arrived a great gathering of privy councillors, in levee dress, with crepe on their left arms, had taken up positions in the throne room—cabinet ministers, peer-commoners, bishops, judges, the lord mayor, etc., including the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught and other members of the royal family.

Lord Salisbury, Lord Rosebery, A. J. Balfour, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, and a host of the most prominent personages in the land were there to receive the king's formal oath, binding him to govern the kingdom according to its laws and customs, and hear him assume the title of King Edward VII of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India.

The ceremony was interesting and according to precedent. The king was in a separate apartment from the privy councillors. To the latter the Duke of Devonshire, lord president of the council, formally communicated the death of Queen Victoria and the succession to the throne of her son, the Prince of Wales. The royal dukes, with certain lords of the council, were then directed to repair to the king's presence to acquaint him with the terms of the lord president's statement. Shortly afterward his majesty entered the room in which the councillors were assembled and addressed them in a brief speech. The lord chancellor (Lord Halsbury) then administered the oath of the king. Afterward the various members of the council took the oath of allegiance and then passed in turn before his majesty, as at a levee, excepting that each paused and kissed the king's hand before passing out of the chamber. This brought the ceremony to a close.

By about 3:30 p. m., when his majesty returned to Marlborough house, the crowd in the neighborhood was of immense proportions. The king's prior journey was accomplished in almost complete silence, but on this occasion he was lustily cheered all along the line of route. Immediately opposite Marlborough house gates a tall gentleman, in front of the crowd, waved his hat and shouted: "Long live the king," whereupon the crowd cheered with redoubled vigor.

Took the Oath of Allegiance.

The house of lords and the house of commons assembled about 4 o'clock and took the oath of allegiance to the new sovereign.

The attendance in the house of commons was large. All the members, dressed in the deepest mourning, stood up as Speaker Gully entered and announced that, by reason of the deeply lamented decease of her majesty, Queen Victoria, it had become their duty to take the oath of allegiance to her successor, his majesty, King Edward VII. The speaker then administered the oath and the swearing in of the members proceeded. Joseph Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies; Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the chancellor of exchequer; Sir Harry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the house, and Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, were the first to subscribe their names on the roll.

In the house of lords the oath was taken by the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught, Earl Roberts, Lord Rosebery, Lord Salisbury, the Duke

London, Jan. 24.—The morning papers record with the greatest satisfaction that the king has taken the title of Edward VII. They are filled from end to end with descriptions of yesterday's ceremonies, and accounts of the reception of the news of the death throughout the kingdom and throughout the entire world. King Edward's first speech is also applauded.

The Daily Telegraph says:

"It was admirable, resolute, touching and breathing deep sincerity. It does equal honor to the monarch and the man, and will carry a fresh sense of hope and confidence to the country in its trouble."

King Edward will return to Osborne immediately after the ceremony today.

Among the innumerable telegrams of sympathy that continue pouring in from abroad President McKinley's gives the greatest pleasure. The Daily Chronicle remarks:

Praise For President's Dispatch.

"It is believed that President McKinley's dispatch was the first to reach the Prince of Wales under his new title, and just as Frederick the Great was the first European sovereign to recognize the independence of the United States, so now the president of the great republic has been the first to acknowledge the kingship of the great grandson of the monarch against whose authority the American colonists successfully rebelled."

"This is very touching when one remembers the visit of the Prince of Wales to Washington's tomb. Probably it was some remembrance of that incident which made President McKinley hasten to be the first to salute the Prince of Wales as king, and the compliment, we are told, was most keenly appreciated."

The Standard said:

"It is not for mere show that the Americans have received the news of the death of Queen Victoria as a bereavement of their own and commented upon it in terms such as they would employ in the case of an honored person dying in office."

Sends Another Very Interesting Letter in Regard to Ohio State University Affairs.

Ohio State University,
January 21, 1901.

Editor News Review—The first meeting of the Students' League of Columbus was held last Tuesday night in the First Congregational church. All of the universities and colleges of the city are represented in this league, and considerable interest is felt in its success. The program Tuesday night consisted of musical numbers and an address by Dr. Gladden, describing his college days and contrasting them with the life of the student today.

The agricultural students' union of Ohio held its seventh annual meeting in Lownhead hall, State University, Thursday evening. The program consisted of reports from the various directors, on the different phases of agriculture, and concluded with an address on "Agricultural Technique," by Prof. J. F. Hickman.

The election of officers was held at the close of the meeting, with the following choice of officers: L. H. Goddard, Minerva, president; W. H. Gilmore, Millersport, vice president; W. D. Gibbs, Columbus, secretary-treasurer, and A. D. Selby, experimentalist. The old board of division directors was reappointed.

The Ohio State Dairy association will meet at the State University on February 6, 7 and 8. Dr. H. L. Russell, bacteriologist of the Wisconsin experimental station, will deliver a stereopticon in the university on the evening of February 6.

The Tile men of Ohio will hold their annual meeting in the council chamber here on February 19 and 20. This meeting promises to be the biggest session in the history of the organization, and papers will be read by the prominent men of the association.

Ohio State University is having considerable trouble over the election of a base ball captain. At a recent meeting the last year's captain was re-elected, but the athletic committee refused to ratify the election. Another election was held, which resulted in a tie between the candidates. It is claimed that fraternity influence is exerted in these elections, and several members of last year's team state that they will not play if the man supported by this secret element is elected. The athletic board will decide the tie vote at its next meeting.

Prof. Wendling, of the University of Michigan, will speak at convocation next Wednesday, and on the first convocation of the second Semester, President Thompson will speak on Lincoln.

The junior class met last Friday to arrange for their annual hop and to elect a historian. The date for the hop was fixed for February 15. Among the members of the social committee which will have charge of it is J. W. McGarry, a junior law and an East Liverpool man.

LIES IN CHAPEL.

Body of the Dead Queen Before an Altar.

MAY STAY SOME DAYS.

Services Were to Be Held Today in Presence of Royal Family.

NEW KING ENTERED LONDON.

Edward VII Attended the Privy Council, at St. James Palace—Members of the House of Commons and House of Lords Took Oath of Allegiance—More Details of the Last Sad Death Scene—The Early Cablegram of Condolence of President McKinley Received With Great Satisfaction—Some Newspaper Comment.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 24.—The body of the late queen lies in a simple coffin in the Chapelle Ardente, festooned with red and white hangings. The bishop of Winchester, standing before an altar removed for the occasion from the private chapel, today was to read a portion of the service for the dead, in the presence of certain members of the royal family.

Body in Front of an Altar.

The coffin rests upon a specially erected platform, draped with royal purple, the feet lying to the east. The head faces the simple altar. Over the features is a thin veil.

For a few hours after the conclusion of this service the public will be admitted to the room and allowed to review the remains of the sovereign who so long ruled over them. The body will rest there until Sunday, and probably no removal will occur for 10 days.

The correspondent of the Associated Press learns that the cause of the queen's death as officially given was "senile decay."

Details of the dying hours were not obtainable until late last evening. It appears that the queen was moved on Sunday from her big bed into a small cot, specially built with springs, which was surrounded by a screen. This was to enable the doctors to reach the patient easily on both sides, which was impossible when she lay in a bed six feet wide. In this small bed she passed away.

When Emperor William arrived he rushed without taking off his overcoat to her bedside, and the first words he said were words of regret that his mother was unable to come. "Yes," murmured the queen, "I wish 'Vicky' could be here," using a pet name of her eldest daughter.

On Tuesday afternoon all the members of the family were in readiness for the end. At 4 the Prince of Wales was summoned. Half an hour later he was joined by the other members of the family. About 5 o'clock the Duchess of York arrived and the queen kissed her, saying "I am glad you have come."

The Bishop Began to Pray.

The bishop of Winchester began to pray. The queen slowly sank into unconsciousness. About 6:15 p. m. the end was thought to have come. The Prince of Wales and several others walked out of the room.

But the vitality of the queen once more won the day. For about 15 minutes, with only the Princess of Wales and a few others present, the feeble spark of life was maintained by kind Providence. About 6:30, with Emperor William, the Prince of Wales and the others absent, death actually came.

Death has softened the face and the thin veil conceals no terrible defects. The hand of the mighty leveler dealt with her lovingly, and, as the last visitation of nature has been mercifully mitigated, so also have been the pomp and glory which accompany the succession of the king. Tuesday night neither he nor his wife would allow their entourage to address them by their correct titles.

Messengers of condolence came from different quarters of the world. President McKinley's early cablegram created a most favorable impression. It was handed around among the royal personages at breakfast yesterday morning, with the general comment that American sympathy was fitly the first to be received.

London, Jan. 24.—The king-emperor entered his capital at about 2:55 p. m., Wednesday, and proceeded to Marlborough house.

The king attended a meeting of the privy council about 2 o'clock and took the title of Edward VII, king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. The public proclamation of the accession was to be made about 10 o'clock today, when his majesty will proceed to the house of lords for the meeting of parliament.

The king drove to St. James palace, from Marlborough house, to reside at the first privy council, by way of Marlborough house yard, the Mall and the garden entrance of the palace. He was attended by Lord Suffolk (who has been lord of the bed chamber of the Prince of Wales since 1872), and was escorted by a captain's escort of the horse guards. The procedure was exactly as on previous days.

The Want of Working People.

When the working man or woman feels sick—liver, stomach or kidneys are out of gear—then Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills do a world of good acting directly on these organs and the bowels.

BAY CITY.

Mr. L. H. Mans, 1301 Columbus Avenue, Bay City, Mich., by overwork and too assiduous attention to his business, brought on an attack of kidney trouble, which made it necessary for him to leave off working at times. He states:

"On the recommendation of Mr. Geo. Leyer, druggist, of this place, I purchased a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for my kidney trouble. They acted so well in relieving my pain and backache that I persisted in the use of them until perfectly cured of my trouble. I am a well man now, thanks to the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

DETROIT.

Mr. Levi Elsey, 805 McDougal Avenue, Detroit, lived for years expecting death from heart failure and Bright's disease, but was cured by a few boxes of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. He writes: "For years I lived in constant fear that I should meet death through kidney trouble. I was troubled terribly by pains in my back and about the heart. My troubles are now over, for Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have made me well again. I will gladly answer any letters about this wonderful medicine."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1901.

"PEECOOLAR."

There are wheels within wheels. Selfish men have been known to cry down and under value desirable property, telling blood curdling ghost stories about the same, when the "colored individual in the woodpile" meant that they were simply working a nice little scheme to dispose of their own undesirable and unsalable property at a snug advance on purchase price.

KILL THE SALOON.

The railroads of the country are determined to do their part in killing the saloon and liquor traffic, and they are adopting a plan which is sensible and practical, namely: Cut off the supply of patrons and the curse will die a natural death. Many railroad companies will now refuse to employ a man addicted to the use of intoxicants, and they will dismiss any employee who is known to enter a saloon or imbibe tanglefoot. Let the good work go on.

TOTAL ABSTAINERS.

The News Review aims to have none but total abstainers from intoxicants among its employees. We have had men in our employ who solemnly averred that they did not partake of alcoholic beverages in any manner or form, and this they backed up on their sacred word of honor. We now understand that some of this class make boast that they "pulled the wool over the old man's eyes, and took their little nip on the side whenever they saw fit." To such poor creatures we extend our pity and sympathy, and simply assure them that a man's word of honor is fully as sacred as is his solemn oath. We will have no saloon or gambling hell habitues on our force when the fact becomes known to us; we will draw the same line on patrons of the house of death, and follow this up with the statement that we will not hold in our employ a man who will not pay his honest debts.

CONSPIRACY.

The law is very clear and explicit in this state of Ohio against conspiracy and conspirators, and the punishment may be made a matter of both financial remuneration to the victim thereof, and the imprisonment of the lawbreakers. This office has lately been victimized by conspirators; men who have made false statements respecting the News Review and its standing from the standpoint of unionism, and we have absolute proof that more than one man in this city has threatened candidates with defeat if they dared to get their cards printed at the job office connected with the News Review; and these men have openly boasted, in the presence of reliable witnesses, that the whole force of what they termed "their association" would be centered against the candidate who would dare defy "their association." Poor creatures. Their malice and hate has placed them in a precarious predicament in the eyes of the law, as they may find to their sorrow.

THE BLEEDER.

He is known as "the Candidate Worker." We have several of him in Columbiana county, and a few of him in East Liverpool. These fellows did a lucrative business in this neck of woods in days gone by. This is a well known fact to many astute politicians, and they have absolute proof against more than one blood-sucking vampire of this class; proof in black and white, and the same will be produced and given to the public at large when the proper time arrives. We have in our possession a letter from a prominent Republican leader which reads as follows:

"I am glad to note that the News Review is on the trail of ward heelers, bleeders and political robbers. Keep the trail warm. You need but generalize at the present time. Later on I will consult with you personally, as I can give you straight testimony against some of this class—proof which cannot be denied or refuted, and it may be deemed necessary to give the public the full names of the robbers, as they have been carrying matters with a high hand, and it is time for our party to check such infamy."

Some of this testimony will make intensely interesting reading, and we sincerely hope that the Republican leader referred to will spring his sensation before the coming spring primary. This office has absolute proof that more than one aspirant for office has already been sounded on the money question, and at least one prominent candidate has saved a snug sum of the needful by and through the medium of the warning given him in the columns of the News Review. Such despicable creatures as these bleeders should be behind prison bars.

FUNNY, ISN'T IT.

And now we have the assurance, from a prominent young business man of this city, that certain individuals in East Liverpool are sending letters to the various candidates for office, warning them not to get their cards printed at the News Review office. Of course these letters have no signatures attached. Cowards and serpents always strike from concealment. We may be able to pull the fangs of these fellows before the end comes. Further, we have the assurance from one who is posted, that certain conspirators are endeavoring to form a pressmen's union in this city, obtain a charter for the same, and bar the News Review out. How is that for conspiracy? He laughs best who laughs last. The conspirators are laughing now. We hold them in absolute contempt, and bid them open defiance. They have bitten off a heap more than they can masticate. In the meantime the News Review job office is crowded with orders. Our city is full of business men and merchants who are lovers of fair play. They hate a coward or cowards, and they will not obey orders issued by such despicable creatures. We fling our union label openly to the breeze. You will find it on our first page every day. No true union man can successfully attack it. We have been doing union work very lately, since these fellows have attacked us, and the unionists getting the work done said: "We want the Typographical union label on our work. We don't want any other label. We don't want what some men call the pressmen's label. We know all about this fuss, and we know, by the action of Typographical union No. 318, concurred in by Trades Council, that 318 covers all the ground necessary for full union products."

Norman McHenry, of Oak street, is improving after a week's illness.

SENT A MESSAGE TO THE NEW KING

RESOLUTIONS TO BE ADOPTED

Memorial Services Will Be Held
Sunday Afternoon at St.
Stephen's Church.

PUBLIC IN GENERAL INVITED

The Sons of St. George held a regular meeting last night and sent a message to the new king of England. The message was as follows:

"East Liverpool, Jan. 23, 1901.
"To His Majesty King Edward VII.
"Sons of St. George of East Liverpool, Ohio, tender their deepest sympathy to your majesty and royal family.
JOHN W. WILLIAMS.
"President."

The message was cabled last night. Chris Horton, Rev. E. Weary, Frank Gallimore, H. C. Smith and T. H. Neal were appointed a committee to draft resolutions, which will be forwarded to the next king.

On next Sunday afternoon at St. Stephen's church a memorial service to the memory of the late Queen Victoria will be held by the Sons of St. George. A band has been engaged to play the dead march and the Sons will carry the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack draped in mourning.

The public in general is invited to attend the services, and especially the British Americans in the city.

Notice.

All members of White Rose lodge No. 25, Daughters of St. George, are requested to meet in K. of P. hall Friday evening at 7 o'clock to make arrangements to attend memorial services Sunday afternoon.

EMILY BARNISH,
President.

Major Charles S. Miller, son of General Charles Miller, of Franklin, Pa., has been renominated by the Republicans for mayor of that city and endorsed by the Democrats.

William C. Leonard, a miller at Mifflintown, Pa., was whirled around a shaft and his brains beaten out. His wife entered the mill in time to see his dead body revolving.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1901.

"PEECOOLAR."

There are wheels within wheels. Selfish men have been known to cry down and under value desirable property, telling blood curdling ghost stories about the same, when the "colored individual in the woodpile" meant that they were simply working a nice little scheme to dispose of their own undesirable and unsalable property at a snug advance on purchase price.

KILL THE SALOON.

The railroads of the country are determined to do their part in killing the saloon and liquor traffic, and they are adopting a plan which is sensible and practical, namely: Cut off the supply of patrons and the curse will die a natural death. Many railroad companies will now refuse to employ a man addicted to the use of intoxicants, and they will dismiss any employee who is known to enter a saloon or imbibe tanglefoot. Let the good work go on.

TOTAL ABSTAINERS.

The News Review aims to have none but total abstainers from intoxicants among its employees. We have had men in our employ who solemnly averred that they did not partake of alcoholic beverages in any manner or form, and this they backed up on their sacred word of honor. We now understand that some of this class make boast that they "pulled the wool over the old man's eyes, and took their little nip on the side whenever they saw fit." To such poor creatures we extend our pity and sympathy, and simply assure them that a man's word of honor is fully as sacred as is his solemn oath. We will have no saloon or gambling hell habitues on our force when the fact becomes known to us; we will draw the same line on patrons of the house of death, and follow this up with the statement that we will not hold in our employ a man who will not pay his honest debts.

CONSPIRACY.

The law is very clear and explicit in this state of Ohio against conspiracy and conspirators, and the punishment may be made a matter of both financial remuneration to the victim thereof, and the imprisonment of the lawbreakers. This office has lately been victimized by conspirators; men who have made false statements respecting the News Review and its standing from the standpoint of unionism, and we have absolute proof that more than one man in this city has threatened candidates with defeat if they dared to get their cards printed at the job office connected with the News Review; and these men have openly boasted, in the presence of reliable witnesses, that the whole force of what they termed "their association" would be centered against the candidate who would dare defy "their association." Poor creatures. Their malice and hate has placed them in a precarious predicament in the eyes of the law, as they may find to their sorrow.

THE BLEEDER.

He is known as "the Candidate Worker." We have several of him in Columbiana county, and a few of him in East Liverpool. These fellows did a lucrative business in this neck of woods in days gone by. This is a well known fact to many astute politicians, and they have absolute proof against more than one blood-sucking vampire of this class; proof in black and white, and the same will be produced and given to the public at large when the proper time arrives. We have in our possession a letter from a prominent Republican leader which reads as follows:

"I am glad to note that the News Review is on the trail of ward heelers, bleeders and political robbers. Keep the trail warm. You need but generalize at the present time. Later on I will consult with you personally, as I can give you straight testimony against some of this class—proof which cannot be denied or refuted, and it may be deemed necessary to give the public the full names of the robbers, as they have been carrying matters with a high hand, and it is time for our party to check such infamy."

Some of this testimony will make intensely interesting reading, and we sincerely hope that the Republican leader referred to will spring his sensation before the coming spring primary. This office has absolute proof that more than one aspirant for office has already been sounded on the money question, and at least one prominent candidate has saved a snug sum of the needful by and through the medium of the warning given him in the columns of the News Review. Such despicable creatures as these bleeders should be behind prison bars.

FUNNY, ISN'T IT.

And now we have the assurance, from a prominent young business man of this city, that certain individuals in East Liverpool are sending letters to the various candidates for office, warning them not to get their cards printed at the News Review office. Of course these letters have no signatures attached. Cowards and serpents always strike from concealment. We may be able to pull the fangs of these fellows before the end comes. Further, we have the assurance from one who is posted, that certain conspirators are endeavoring to form a pressmen's union in this city, obtain a charter for the same, and bar the News Review out. How is that for conspiracy? He laughs best who laughs last. The conspirators are laughing now. We hold them in absolute contempt, and bid them open defiance. They have bitten off a heap more than they can masticate. In the meantime the News Review job office is crowded with orders. Our city is full of business men and merchants who are lovers of fair play. They hate a coward or cowards, and they will not obey orders issued by such despicable creatures. We fling our union label openly to the breeze. You will find it on our first page every day. No true union man can successfully attack it. We have been doing union work very lately, since these fellows have attacked us, and the unionists getting the work done said: "We want the Typographical union label on our work. We don't want any other label. We don't want what some men call the pressmen's label. We know all about this fuss, and we know, by the action of Typographical union No. 318, concurred in by Trades Council, that 318 covers all the ground necessary for full union products."

Norman McHenry, of Oak street, is improving after a week's illness.

SENT A MESSAGE TO THE NEW KING

Sons of St. George of This City
Extend Their Deepest Sympathy to Him.

RESOLUTIONS TO BE ADOPTED

Memorial Services Will Be Held
Sunday Afternoon at St.
Stephen's Church.

PUBLIC IN GENERAL INVITED

The Sons of St. George held a regular meeting last night and sent a message to the new king of England. The message was as follows:

"East Liverpool, Jan. 23, 1901.
"To His Majesty King Edward VII.
"Sons of St. George of East Liverpool, Ohio, tender their deepest sympathy to your majesty and royal family.
JOHN W. WILLIAMS.
"President."

The message was cabled last night. Chris Horton, Rev. E. Weary, Frank Gallimore, H. C. Smith and T. H. Neal were appointed a committee to draft resolutions, which will be forwarded to the next king.

On next Sunday afternoon at St. Stephen's church a memorial service to the memory of the late Queen Victoria will be held by the Sons of St. George. A band has been engaged to play the dead march and the Sons will carry the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack draped in mourning.

The public in general is invited to attend the services, and especially the British Americans in the city.

Notice.

All members of White Rose lodge No. 25, Daughters of St. George, are requested to meet in K. of P. hall Friday evening at 7 o'clock to make arrangements to attend memorial services Sunday afternoon.

EMILY BARNISH,
President.

Major Charles S. Miller, son of General Charles Miller, of Franklin, Pa., has been renominated by the Republicans for mayor of that city and endorsed by the Democrats.

William C. Leonard, a miller at Millintown, Pa., was whirled around a shaft and his brains beaten out. His wife entered the mill in time to see his dead body revolving.

THE GRAND JURY TO CLEAN UP WELLSVILLE.

Wellsville is going to get another raking over by the grand jury which begins its sessions next Monday. The word has gone out that some Wellsville folks have forgotten what the September grand jury did to them and have gone back to their old ways again. The reports that come are that the law is being violated in various ways. It is stated to be a positive fact that if the present plans of the county officials go through there will be about as many Wellsville cases before the court next week as there was in September, when every one suspected of having done anything in violation of the law was brought over and indicted and fined.

A few nights ago one of the sleuths of the sheriff's office went to Wellsville and got points for future action when the proper time comes. He got a great deal of information about alleged violations of the law and when he came back he had a note book filled with the names of alleged offenders and witnesses.

The last grand jury got something like $3,000 in fines and costs out of Wellsville men and women. The sheriff's office has begun to look upon Wellsville as a sort of gold mine, and it is safe to say that it will receive careful attention every time the grand jury meets. All the sheriff's deputies get good pickings from the sheriff's home town in grand jury time. There is lots of fee business over there.

Word has come from Wellsville that there are two or three gambling rooms running in full blast there now. It is said that these places are running every night and Sunday too. The authorities know about them even if the Wellsville police do not, and those who are in the game are likely to have business in Lisbon next week.

It is believed the court will deal severely with law violators from Wellsville this time.

EAST END.

FREE DELIVERY.

East End Residents Think They Are Entitled to It And Will Petition.

A movement will be started in the near future which may end in a rural free delivery for the eastern end of Columbiana county.

The district is very thickly populated and the inconvenience in getting to and from the postoffice is great. A great many of the people who live in this neighborhood have talked the matter over among themselves and will take action very soon. One prominent man said this morning:

"You see, most of the people here are employed in the down town potteries, and those who secure their mail at the East End office are compelled to either pay two fares on the street cars or walk half way home in order to get their mail. We are not just clear as to what conditions must be complied with in order to get the service, but are investigating the matter, and if it is possible to get the thing through we propose to do it."

TOO MUCH MUD.

The Condition of Pennsylvania Avenue Near Columbian Park is Something Fierce.

The condition of Pennsylvania avenue for a distance of about half a mile near Columbian park is abominable.

East End is pretty thickly settled along here, and a great majority of the residents work in the city proper, being compelled to take the street cars at various points along the thoroughfare. The street railway company have signs tacked on polls notifying the public that cars stop there, but the average resident takes his life in his hand when he attempts to wade to the center of the street, as the mud is so deep that it is almost impossible to walk through.

It is thought with a small amount of expense the company could build walks along this street where the signs appear. It has been suggested also that the residents in this vicinity might get together and build cinder paths to the car line.

In fact, almost anything would be better than the present condition.

To the Hospital.

It is reported that William Kinney, of East End, is arranging his business affairs preparatory to taking a two-weeks' course of treatment in the West Penn hospital for an ingrowing toe nail.

East End Notes.

Contractor Cross Kerr will commence the erection of a stone retaining wall in a few days on the Hargraves property on the hill above East End.

Elijah Grant, who has been ill at his home on High street for several weeks, is slightly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Van Fossen are confined to their home on High street with the grip.

Mrs. Joseph Bailey is very ill at her home on First avenue with an attack of the grip.

D. G. Van Fossen is slowly improving from his recent illness.

Herbert Moore has resigned his position at the National pottery, and this morning Joseph Bailey took charge of the engines at that plant.

BRYAN'S PAPER APPEARED.

Edition Was Increased to 50,000—The Greater Part Mr. Bryan's Own Writings.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 24.—W. J. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, was served to local patrons last evening, it having been issued during the day. It was a busy day for Mr. Bryan, his business manager and clerks. As fast as the presses ran them off the papers were taken to the mailing room about two blocks distant, where they were turned over to clerks for addressing and mailing. The original intention was to print but about 30,000 copies, but the subscriptions came in at such a rate Tuesday that the edition was increased to about 50,000.

The paper is of eight pages, three columns to a page, slightly larger than the ordinary magazine, and of good typographical appearance. The longer editorials begin on the first page and continue to the fourth, which is devoted to short paragraphs on public questions. There are a few contributions and a little reprint, but the greater part of the matter is Mr. Bryan's own writings.

THE S. G. HARD CO.
THE BIG STORE

PENNIES ARE IN GREAT DEMAND

Mint Is Working Hard to Fill the Orders For the Small Coins.

THEY ARE USED IN BIG STORES

One New York Store Recently Asked For One Million Pennies But

IT FAILED TO GET THEM

One night this week there wasn't a cent in the United States sub-treasury in Wall street—not a penny. There were millions in gold coins and millions in greenbacks, but the pennies were all out—this in face of the fact that the local sub-treasury handles some 45,000,000 pennies every year. The demand for the small coins is so great that 14 big presses are working over time at the mint at Philadelphia in a hopeless attempt to supply it. These presses turn out some 800,000 pennies daily, but that is not enough.

Cashier M. L. Muhleman, of the sub-treasury, says that the demand for the coins is so great that he averages the applications and pays to each in proportion to the size of his demand. One department store asked the other day for a cool million of pennies—$10,000. The store wanted enough to last three months. Others were more conservative and wanted only 5,000. These orders were the extreme.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the rage for cent pieces is the fact that there are more pennies in circulation than of any other coin. Last year the sub-treasury sorted out 110,813 counterfeit pennies from a total of 41,112,900 old ones handled. Of course the new ones are paid out without examination. The old ones were brought in by concerns that wanted them redeemed for money of larger denomination. The big stores that need pennies in their business do not call on the sub-treasury to redeem, but only to replenish their supply. Thus the number secured at the sub-treasury is no measure of the total they turn over every day in business. It is the "99 cents, reduced from $1," that does it.

During November the sub-treasury redeemed 2,874,000 and found 10,365 of them bad. In the same month, out of 1,895,260 nickels redeemed, only 112 were bad. The most bad pennies taken in one day recently was 1,250, out of a total of 157,000. Of all the pennies taken from the picture machines, one per cent are counterfeit.

The number of pennies redeemed furnishes a gauge of business in the particular lines that use them most. Usually a mid-summer month furnishes the most. There were 4,500,000 redeemed last August. Last month the pennies were working hard in the stores and there were but 2,800,000 redeemed.

It keeps seven men busy all the time counting and assorting the pennies in the local sub-treasury. The penny room is in the corner on Cedar street. Each of these men can count $600 in pennies in one day—60,000 pieces, throwing out the bad ones without hesitation. The government furnishes a machine for counting the coins, and this is used in some of the smaller sub-treasuries where the counters are not so expert, but here the hand work is the fastest. This city supplies these coins only for this state, New Jersey, western Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The city takes most of them. The great west consumes millions more than are supplied directly from the mint to the various sub-treasuries.

It costs the government about one-fifth of a cent to make a penny. It costs the counterfeiter no more—less, in fact, for he does not need expensive dies—just stamps the copper disks with an ordinary seal press. The government buys its disks ready made of a big factory at Waterbury, Conn. Before these disks are stamped they are more glossy than gold. The press that turns them out stamps them faster than one can count.—New York Mail and Express.

SOUTH SIDE.

Pump is Working.

The large pump of the Southside water works was put to work at noon yesterday, and is still in operation. The apparatus is most satisfactory.

It will be but a short time until the whole system will be in full operation.

Engineers at Work.

A force of engineers from East Liverpool yesterday began the work of laying out two tiers of lots on the Thomas Stevenson farm on the hill near the reservoir. The location is very fine, although somewhat difficult of access.

A New Undertaker.

J. A. Bowers, the Chester liveryman, has embarked in the undertaking business, and yesterday received his hearse from the hands of the manufacturers.

Southside Notes.

J. A. Gibson is in New Cumberland today.

Charles Patterson, clerk at the Chester grocery, was presented with a valuable dog a few days ago by a friend in the country.

C. A. Ault, a Pittsburg traveling man, was a Chester visitor today.

Horace Simcox, of Rochester, will be a guest at the home of G. A. Arner on Saturday.

E. S. Johnson and Alex Marshall are ill with grip.

Cecil Babb is ill at her home in the Thompson building.

A. J. Thrasher will arrive in Chester tomorrow from Pittsburg and will transact some important business here.

RELIGIOUS CONGRESS.

Different Creeds Represented at Chicago.

MET IN A PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

To Have Faith in God, Given by Rev. Frank Crane as One of the Four Dimensions of Religion—Dr. Thomas Said There Could Be No Monopoly of Religion.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Different creeds, isms and societies were represented at the opening meeting of the mid-centennial congress of religion in the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church. The address of welcome was by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. A. Ronthaler.

Dr. H. W. Thomas presided, in his address he said there could be no such thing as a monopoly of religion; that the truth of the infinite is common and universal.

Rev. Frank Crane, pastor of the Hyde Park M. E. church, spoke on the "Four Dimensions of Religion," which he defined "to think clearly, to love one's fellow man sincerely, to act from honest motives and to have faith in God." He urged that people should unite on the simple, essential truths which all recognize.

Prof. Graham Taylor, of the Chicago Theological seminary, spoke on "The preparation of the nineteenth century for social service in the twentieth."

There were to be an afternoon and evening session today. Among the speakers there will likely be Rev. R. A. White, Edwin D. Mead, of Boston; William M. Salter, Ernest P. Rickenell, Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Rev. Henry F. Ward, Rev. Albert Lazenby and Dr. Emil Hirsch.

The purpose of the congress is to bring about a closer unity of Christian work for the welfare of humanity.

Jacob Naugle and his two sons have been sued by the Marks heirs, of Ligonier township, Westmoreland county, Pa., on a charge of arson.

The Babylon breaker at Duryea, Pa., burned. The colliery was operated by Simpson & Watkins. The loss is estimated at about $100,000.

Dr. W. W. Dickey, of Bluefield, W. Va., was acquitted at Princeton, W. Va., of the murder of Miss Maggie Calfree, which occurred last summer.

Mrs. Robert Monroe is suing her father, Dr. Z. W. Wyatt, for $10,000 for libel and defamation of character. The case is on trial at Clarksburg, W. Va.

The last grand jury got something like $3,000 in fines and costs out of Wellsville men and women. The sheriff's office has begun to look upon Wellsville as a sort of gold mine, and it is safe to say that it will receive careful attention every time the grand jury meets. All the sheriff's deputies get good pickings from the sheriff's home town in grand jury time. There is lots of fee business over there.

Word has come from Wellsville that there are two or three gambling rooms running in full blast there now. It is said that these places are running every night and Sunday too. The authorities know about them even if the Wellsville police do not, and those who are in the game are likely to have business in Lisbon next week.

It is believed the court will deal severely with law violators from Wellsville this time.

FREE DELIVERY.

East End Residents Think They Are Entitled to It And Will Petition.

A movement will be started in the near future which may end in a rural free delivery for the eastern end of Columbiana county.

The district is very thickly populated and the inconvenience in getting to and from the postoffice is great. A great many of the people who live in this neighborhood have talked the matter over among themselves and will take action very soon. One prominent man said this morning:

"You see, most of the people here are employed in the down town potteries, and those who secure their mail at the East End office are compelled to either pay two fares on the street cars or walk half way home in order to get their mail. We are not just clear as to what conditions must be complied with in order to get the service, but are investigating the matter, and if it is possible to get the thing through we propose to do it."

TOO MUCH MUD.

The Condition of Pennsylvania Avenue Near Columbian Park is Something Fierce.

The condition of Pennsylvania avenue for a distance of about half a mile near Columbian park is abominable.

East End is pretty thickly settled along here, and a great majority of the residents work in the city proper, being compelled to take the street cars at various points along the thoroughfare. The street railway company have signs tacked on polls notifying the public that cars stop there, but the average resident takes his life in his hand when he attempts to wade to the center of the street, as the mud is so deep that it is almost impossible to walk through.

It is thought with a small amount of expense the company could build walks along this street where the signs appear. It has been suggested also that the residents in this vicinity might get together and build cinder paths to the car line.

In fact, almost anything would be better than the present condition.

To the Hospital.

It is reported that William Kinney, of East End, is arranging his business affairs preparatory to taking a two-weeks' course of treatment in the West Penn hospital for an ingrowing toe nail.

East End Notes.

Contractor Cross Kerr will commence the erection of a stone retaining wall in a few days on the Hargraves property on the hill above East End.

Elijah Grant, who has been ill at his home on High street for several weeks, is slightly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Van Fossen are confined to their home on High street with the grip.

Mrs. Joseph Bailey is very ill at her home on First avenue with an attack of the grip.

D. G. Van Fossen is slowly improving from his recent illness.

Herbert Moore has resigned his position at the National pottery, and this morning Joseph Bailey took charge of the engines at that plant.

Edition Was Increased to 50,000—The Greater Part Mr. Bryan's Own Writings.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 24.—W. J. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, was served to local patrons last evening, it having been issued during the day. It was a busy day for Mr. Bryan, his business manager and clerks. As fast as the presses ran them off the papers were taken to the mailing room about two blocks distant, where they were turned over to clerks for addressing and mailing. The original intention was to print but about 30,000 copies, but the subscriptions came in at such a rate Tuesday that the edition was increased to about 50,000.

The paper is of eight pages, three columns to a page, slightly larger than the ordinary magazine, and of good typographical appearance. The longer editorials begin on the first page and continue to the fourth, which is devoted to short paragraphs on public questions. There are a few contributions and a little reprint, but the greater part of the matter is Mr. Bryan's own writings.

PENNIES ARE IN GREAT DEMAND

Mint Is Working Hard to Fill the Orders For the Small Coins.

THEY ARE USED IN BIG STORES

One New York Store Recently Asked For One Million Pennies But

IT FAILED TO GET THEM

One night this week there wasn't a cent in the United States sub-treasury in Wall street—not a penny. There were millions in gold coins and millions in greenbacks, but the pennies were all out—this in face of the fact that the local sub-treasury handles some 45,000,000 pennies every year. The demand for the small coins is so great that 14 big presses are working over time at the mint at Philadelphia in a hopeless attempt to supply it. These presses turn out some 800,000 pennies daily, but that is not enough.

Cashier M. L. Muhleman, of the sub-treasury, says that the demand for the coins is so great that he averages the applications and pays to each in proportion to the size of his demand. One department store asked the other day for a cool million of pennies—$10,000. The store wanted enough to last three months. Others were more conservative and wanted only 5,000. These orders were the extreme.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the rage for cent pieces is the fact that there are more pennies in circulation than of any other coin. Last year the sub-treasury sorted out 110,813 counterfeit pennies from a total of 41,112,900 old ones handled. Of course the new ones are paid out without examination. The old ones were brought in by concerns that wanted them redeemed for money of larger denomination. The big stores that need pennies in their business do not call on the sub-treasury to redeem, but only to replenish their supply. Thus the number secured at the sub-treasury is no measure of the total they turn over every day in business. It is the "99 cents, reduced from $1," that does it.

During November the sub-treasury redeemed 2,874,000 and found 10,365 of them bad. In the same month, out of 1,895,260 nickels redeemed, only 112 were bad. The most bad pennies taken in one day recently was 1,250, out of a total of 157,000. Of all the pennies taken from the picture machines, one per cent are counterfeit.

The number of pennies redeemed furnishes a gauge of business in the particular lines that use them most. Usually a mid-summer month furnishes the most. There were 4,500,000 redeemed last August. Last month the pennies were working hard in the stores and there were but 2,800,000 redeemed.

It keeps seven men busy all the time counting and assorting the pennies in the local sub-treasury. The penny room is in the corner on Cedar street. Each of these men can count $600 in pennies in one day—60,000 pieces, throwing out the bad ones without hesitation. The government furnishes a machine for counting the coins, and this is used in some of the smaller sub-treasuries where the counters are not so expert, but here the hand work is the fastest. This city supplies these coins only for this state, New Jersey, western Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The city takes most of them. The great west consumes millions more than are supplied directly from the mint to the various sub-treasuries.

It costs the government about one-fifth of a cent to make a penny. It costs the counterfeiter no more—less, in fact, for he does not need expensive dies—just stamps the copper disks with an ordinary seal press. The government buys its disks ready made of a big factory at Waterbury, Conn. Before these disks are stamped they are more glossy than gold. The press that turns them out stamps them faster than one can count.—New York Mail and Express.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Different creeds, laws and societies were represented at the opening meeting of the mid-centennial congress of religion in the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church. The address of welcome was by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. A. Rothbaler.

Dr. H. W. Thomas presided. In his address he said there could be no such thing as a monopoly of religion; that the truth of the infinite is common and universal.

Rev. Frank Crane, pastor of the Hyde Park M. E. church, spoke on the "Four Dimensions of Religion," which he defined "to think clearly, to love one's fellow man sincerely, to act from honest motives and to have faith in God." He urged that people should unite on the simple, essential truths which all recognize.

Prof. Graham Taylor, of the Chicago Theological seminary, spoke on "The preparation of the nineteenth century for social service in the twentieth."

There were to be an afternoon and evening session today. Among the speakers there will likely be Rev. R. A. White, Edwin D. Mead, of Boston; William M. Salter, Ernest P. Ricknell, Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Rev. Henry F. Ward, Rev. Albert Lazenby and Dr. Emil Hirsch.

The purpose of the congress is to bring about a closer unity of Christian work for the welfare of humanity.

Notice of Stockholders Meeting.

A MEETING OF THE STOCKHOLDERS of the Spring Grove Camp Meeting association will be held at the office of P. M. THE GRAND JURY TO CLEAN UP WELLSVILLE.

Wellsville is going to get another raking over by the grand jury which begins its sessions next Monday. The word has gone out that some Wellsville folks have forgotten what the September grand jury did to them and have gone back to their old ways again. The reports that come are that the law is being violated in various ways. It is stated to be a positive fact that if the present plans of the county officials go through there will be about as many Wellsville cases before the court next week as there was in September, when every one suspected of having done anything in violation of the law was brought over and indicted and fined.

A few nights ago one of the sleuths of the sheriff's office went to Wellsville and got points for future action when the proper time comes. He got a great deal of information about alleged violations of the law and when he came back he had a note book filled with the names of alleged offenders and witnesses.

The last grand jury got something like $3,000 in fines and costs out of Wellsville men and women. The sheriff's office has begun to look upon Wellsville as a sort of gold mine, and it is safe to say that it will receive careful attention every time the grand jury meets. EDWARD VII, ENGLAND'S NEW KING.

The Kind of Man Who Comes to the Throne of Great Britain After Many Years of Waiting --- His Gracious and Noble Queen, Alexandra --- Some Facts About the New Heir Apparent.

Edward VII, the new king of England and emperor of India, is in his sixtieth year. He is well preserved, of average height, of portly build, florid as to complexion and of an even, placid temperament.

In the shadow of the throne he has lived an almost uneventful life. While waiting for the scepter and royal robes he has had little chance to show what kindly mettle was in him.

The world knows him only as a jolly prince who has done nothing very good nor any great evil. Perhaps the most notable feature of his life thus far has been his fondness for sports. He has raced horses, sailed yachts, shot birds, played cards and gambled more or less, with more or less discretion.

He might have come to the throne as Albert I, starting a new line of kings, prince himself desired to be called Edward. The queen's ministers and the queen's subjects desired it, so at last the mother, so fond of her own way in everything, saw that it were better to yield. But she is reported to have shed tears over it.

It was on the morning of the 9th of November, 1841, that an anxious group of personages waited in the great rooms of Buckingham palace. They were dignitaries of church and state who had been summoned in accordance with royal etiquette to be present at the arrival of a possible heir to the throne of England. They gathered together in the anteroom close by the queen's bed chamber. Among them were archbishops and bishops, arrayed in silk shovel hats and gorgeous aprons; members of the cabinet, headed by the prime minister; nurses and doctors by the balcony to a huge crowd of persons, who went wild with delight.

The boyhood of the prince was uneventful. His early education was conducted at home under the tutelage of the Rev. H. M. Birch, rector of Prestwich; Mr. Gibbs, barrister at law; the Rev. C. F. Tarver and Mr. H. W. Fisher. He then studied for a session at Edinburgh and later entered Christ church, Oxford. Here he attended public lectures for a year and afterward resided for three or four terms at Trinity college, Cambridge, for the same purpose.

His earliest appearance in a leading part on any public occasion was in 1859, at the laying of the foundation stone of the Lambeth School of Art at Vauxhall. After the death of his father in December, 1861, he naturally became the most desirable functionary at all ceremonies in which beneficent or charitable undertakings were to be recognized by royal approval. This work has ever since occupied a large share of his time and has always been performed with dignity, tact and patience. Indeed no prince of any country has ever personally exerted himself more faithfully to render services of this sort to the community. The multiplicity and variety of his engagements on behalf of local and special enterprises make a surprising list and necessarily involved a sacrifice of ease and leisure which few men of high rank would care to make.

Among the members of the royal family the prince of Wales has been called Bertie from his childhood. His father called him by that name; his mother entered it in her daily diary long after he had grown to manhood and become the father of a large family; his wife calls him Bertie today. But were he to any outsider, however intimate, who dares address the prince by that name!

An adoring British aristocracy has applied all sorts of names to the popular heir apparent, which have been taken up by many Americans who have met him and a great many more who have not. Some of these pet names have not been altogether dignified, or even respectful—such as "tum-tum." But the prince has put up with them all good naturedly. But Bertie was for the family alone. The Princess of Wales' wedding ring is set with a beryl, an emerald, a ruby, a turquoise, an iacinth and a second emerald. The initials of these six gems spell "Bertie." It was the prince's idea.

In the summer of 1860 the prince paid a visit to Canada and the United States. Everywhere he was received with boundless enthusiasm. He danced at a ball given in his honor at Washington, where he was cordially welcomed by President Buchanan.

The United States indeed was prepared to receive him with open arms. At Hamilton, the last place in Canada where he made a halt, he had spoken some kindly words, which awoke general approval here.

"My duties," he said, "as representative of the queen cease this day, but in a private capacity I am about to visit before my return home that re-eldest daughter of the king of Denmark. She was three years younger than the prince and, though comparatively poor, was beautiful and accomplished. The marriage was celebrated in St. George's chapel, Windsor castle, on March 10, 1863.

All England rejoiced over the event. Tennyson, who had just been made poet laureate, wrote one of his fine poems, "A Welcome to Alexandra," on this occasion. The princess soon made herself very popular with all classes of the British public, not only by her outward grace of manner, but also by her virtues and amiability. The prince himself has always shared in this popularity, although the sterner puritanism of his potential subjects has often been shocked by stories of his dissipation.

EDWARD VII, ENGLAND'S NEW KING.

The Kind of Man Who Comes to the Throne of Great Britain After Many Years of Waiting --- His Gracious and Noble Queen, Alexandra --- Some Facts About the New Heir Apparent.

Edward VII, the new king of England and emperor of India, is in his sixtieth year. He is well preserved, of average height, of portly build, florid as to complexion and of an even, placid temperament.

In the shadow of the throne he has lived an almost uneventful life. While waiting for the scepter and royal robes he has had little chance to show what kingly mettle was in him.

The world knows him only as a jolly prince who has done nothing very good nor any great evil. Perhaps the most notable feature of his life thus far has been his fondness for sports. He has raced horses, sailed yachts, shot birds, played cards and gambled more or less, with more or less discretion.

He might have come to the throne as Albert I, starting a new line of kings, prince himself desired to be called Edward. The queen's ministers and the queen's subjects desired it, so at last the mother, so fond of her own way in everything, saw that it were better to yield. But she is reported to have shed tears over it.

It was on the morning of the 9th of November, 1841, that an anxious group of personages waited in the great rooms of Buckingham palace. They were dignitaries of church and state who had been summoned in accordance with royal etiquette to be present at the arrival of a possible heir to the throne of England. They gathered together in the anteroom close by the queen's bed chamber. Among them were archbishops and bishops, arrayed in silk shovel hats and gorgeous aprons; members of the cabinet, headed by the prime minister; nurses and doctors by the balcony to a huge crowd of persons, who went wild with delight.

The boyhood of the prince was uneventful. His early education was conducted at home under the tutelage of the Rev. H. M. Birch, rector of Prestwich; Mr. Gibbs, barrister at law; the Rev. C. F. Tarver and Mr. H. W. Fisher. He then studied for a session at Edinburgh and later entered Christ church, Oxford. Here he attended public lectures for a year and afterward resided for three or four terms at Trinity college, Cambridge, for the same purpose.

His earliest appearance in a leading part on any public occasion was in 1859, at the laying of the foundation stone of the Lambeth School of Art at Vauxhall. After the death of his father in December, 1861, he naturally became the most desirable functionary at all ceremonies in which beneficent or charitable undertakings were to be recognized by royal approval. This work has ever since occupied a large share of his time and has always been performed with dignity, tact and patience. Indeed no prince of any country has ever personally exerted himself more faithfully to render services of this sort to the community. The multiplicity and variety of his engagements on behalf of local and special enterprises make a surprising list and necessarily involved a sacrifice of ease and leisure which few men of high rank would care to make.

Among the members of the royal family the prince of Wales has been called Bertie from his childhood. His father called him by that name; his mother entered it in her daily diary long after he had grown to manhood and become the father of a large family; his wife calls him Bertie today. But were he to any outsider, however intimate, who dares address the prince by that name!

An adoring British aristocracy has applied all sorts of names to the popular heir apparent, which have been taken up by many Americans who have met him and a great many more who have not. Some of these pet names have not been altogether dignified, or even respectful—such as "tum-tum." But the prince has put up with them all good naturedly. But Bertie was for the family alone. The Princess of Wales' wedding ring is set with a beryl, an emerald, a ruby, a turquoise, an lacinth and a second emerald. The initials of these six gems spell "Bertie." It was the princess' idea.

In the summer of 1880 the prince paid a visit to Canada and the United States. Everywhere he was received with boundless enthusiasm. He danced at a ball given in his honor at Washington, where he was cordially welcomed by President Buchanan.

The United States indeed was prepared to receive him with open arms. At Hamilton, the last place in Canada where he made a halt, he had spoken some kindly words, which awoke general approval here.

"My duties," he said, "as representative of the queen cease this day, but in a private capacity I am about to visit before my return home that re-

A very pretty and romantic story is told of how the Princess of Denmark became the wife of Prince Albert Edward of Wales. The prince chanced to be whiling away part of a long summer afternoon with two or three congenial friends when one of them, a colonel, produced from his pocket a photograph.

The prince immediately became struck by the beauty and simplicity of the young person in the picture and soon became possessor of it. Within a very short time he had dispatched a confidential emissary to Denmark to carry his suit to the princess. The emissary was struck by the simplicity of the royal personages, but particularly by the grandeur and beauty of the young princess. Because of her simple home training the princess was best fitted for the pomp and honor of her station. She is a brilliant woman, strictly conservative, of commanding presence and stature.

Her character is at once strong and sweet, and she shows a kindly consideration for all who approach her.

As a mother she is ideal. Her children were reared and educated as befits their station, and their discipline is a matter of comment in England. She is a thoroughly practical woman, fond of the best literature and an accomplished musician.

Lady Randolph Churchill were inseparable one never shopped without the other—but at a later date she took Lady Craven instead and insisted that she become one of her ladies of honor.

It is not in temperament alone that the new queen differs from her predecessor, but in every other detail.

For years Alexandra has been noted for her taste in dress—an accusation never made of Queen Victoria.

In admirable characteristics Alexandra is not wanting. She is the only one of Queen Victoria's royal daughters-in-law who has been able to get along with her. Even her daughters have found little sympathy in the cool rigidity of the throne. But Alexandra began by determining to like her mother-in-law, and she has kept it up.

Queen Victoria declared that she liked the Princess of Wales better than any one of her own family except Beatrice and that she would sooner see her on the throne than any other one that she could mention.

The new Prince of Wales, like the new king, is a man who has sown his wild oats with a princely and lavish ship stationed at Dartmouth. Here the young prince entered upon his training for the profession to which his after life was to be devoted and showed a great deal of taste for naval studies, applying himself in praiseworthy manner to the intricacies of navigation and to the mysteries of knotting and splicing and the other details of a seaman's education. His elder brother, Albert Victor, the duke of Clarence, died in 1892, and George took his place in the succession. York's training has been altogether naval. In 1883 he became a midshipman on board the Canada, with the North American squadron. In 1885, after passing the examinations with great credit, he was promoted to a lieutenancy. His first command was that of the gunboat Thrush on the West Indian station, and while occupying that post he opened the Jamaica Industrial exposition in 1890.

Just one year later the young man was raised to the rank of commander, but his actual service was brought to a close by the death of his brother and his own suddenly acquired importance as heir presumptive.

The Duchess of York, his wife, was formerly the pretty Princess May of Teck. The marriage has been very happy, and this royal couple are probably the most democratic of their kind in Great Britain. They have three pretty children, two of whom are princes.

The new Prince of Wales has earned for himself a warm place in British hearts. He is extremely popular, for the English believe him to be thoroughly manly. Only a year ago, when the situation in South Africa developed into a serious war, he declared his eagerness to go and fight the Boers. Only peremptory orders from the queen herself kept him at home.

Queen's Private Wealth.

London, Jan. 24.—The queen's private wealth yielded an income of about £200,000 yearly. This is exclusive of £385,000 annually from parliament. Her private income, as gathered from easy available sources, was from the Duchy of Lancaster, upwards of £50,000; from 37,372 acres in the queen's other estates, £25,000; from London realty, supposedly £10,000; in consols and other securities, between £3,000,000 and £4,000,000. She inherited nearly all the Prince Consort's estate of £600,000 40 years ago, and £500,000 in 1852 from John Camden Neild, the son of a rich jeweler. The queen was a clear-headed business woman and of course had the best financial advice. In 1881, by the advice of Lord Cross, Lord Sydney and Sir Arnold White, she bought property for £78,000, the market value of which is now reckoned to be £170,000. She had estates in several German principalities and inherited a beautiful villa at Baden from Princess Hohenlohe. The queen's lace is worth an enormous sum. These and her private jewels, gold plate, pictures, etc., are estimated to value more than a million pounds sterling.

ALEXANDRA, THE NEW QUEEN.

An intimate friend of the Princess of Wales—for only an intimate friend can be pardoned in so describing her—says that she is "sweet, noble, pretty, snappy, arrogant and disagreeable." Her temper is quick, disagreeable and uncertain. Yet, withal, this friend adds that she is "just the most lovable woman in the world."

Queen Victoria during her long reign has shown herself to be more a man than a woman. Her conduct in time of trouble has been calm and serene, and in time of peace she has displayed the stolidity so admired by Englishmen.

Queen Alexandra, on the other hand, is always a woman. Excitable at times, fervent, pathetic, variable—and womanly always.

The strongest feature displayed by the new queen of England is her clique. No one ever knew Victoria to have an intimate friend. Even Mme. Albani was kept at length, but Queen Alexandra has her friends and falls out with them in a woman's way.

At one time she loved Lady Brooke, but her love cooled; at another she and hand. He has, however, settled down and become a man of family and dignity.

George Frederick Ernest Albert, the second and eldest surviving son of the new King Edward VII, has long been known as the Duke of York. He has also been called "the sailor prince" from the fact that he has had a naval career.

He was born June 3, 1865. The young prince, like his brother and sisters, was brought up with the most studied simplicity both in London and at Sandringham and much more like the child of a plain country gentleman than the son of a royal prince as such bringing up is understood in other countries. The Rev. J. N. Dalton was selected by the Prince of Wales as his son's tutor, and under his superintendence the first few years of the young prince's life were passed in quiet study and in a happy home life of which he was the leading spirit.

In 1877 Prince George and the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale became naval cadets and entered on board H. M. S. Britannia, the training genial friends when one of them, a colonel, produced from his pocket a photograph.

The prince immediately became struck by the beauty and simplicity of the young person in the picture and soon became possessor of it. Within a very short time he had dispatched a confidential emissary to Denmark to carry his suit to the princess. The emissary was struck by the simplicity of the royal personages, but particularly by the grandeur and beauty of the young princess. Because of her simple home training the princess was best fitted for the pomp and honor of her station. She is a brilliant woman, strictly conservative, of commanding presence and stature.

When I was three months along for my third child I was taken with hemorrhage or flooding and came near having a miscarriage from female weakness. For two months I was under the care of our doctor, but was getting weaker all the time until one day I happened to come across one of your little books and I read it through, and the next day I sent and got three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of 'Pellets.' I improved so fast I continued to take your medicine until baby was born, and he is healthy and all right. My health has been good ever since. I now weigh 165 pounds."

"Favorite Prescription" makes Weak Women Strong, and Sick Women Well.

ALEXANDRA, THE NEW QUEEN.

An intimate friend of the Princess of Wales—for only an intimate friend can be pardoned in so describing her—says that she is "sweet, noble, pretty, snappy, arrogant and disagreeable." Her temper is quick, disagreeable and uncertain. Yet, withal, this friend adds that she is "just the most lovable woman in the world."

Queen Victoria during her long reign has shown herself to be more a man than a woman. Her conduct in time of trouble has been calm and serene, and in time of peace she has displayed the stolidity so admired by Englishmen.

Queen Alexandra, on the other hand, is always a woman. Excitable at times, fervent, pathetic, variable—and womanly always.

The strongest feature displayed by the new queen of England is her clique. No one ever knew Victoria to have an intimate friend. Even Mme. Albani was kept at length, but Queen Alexandra has her friends and falls out with them in a woman's way.

At one time she loved Lady Brooke, but her love cooled; at another she and hand. He has, however, settled down and become a man of family and dignity.

George Frederick Ernest Albert, the second and eldest surviving son of the new King Edward VII., has long been known as the Duke of York. He has also been called "the sailor prince" from the fact that he has had a naval career.

He was born June 3, 1865. The young prince, like his brother and sisters, was brought up with the most studied simplicity both in London and at Sandringham and much more like the child of a plain country gentleman than the son of a royal prince as such bringing up is understood in other countries. The Rev. J. N. Dalton was selected by the Prince of Wales as his son's tutor, and under his superintendence the first few years of the young prince's life were passed in quiet study and in a happy home life of which he was the leading spirit.

In 1877 Prince George and the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale became naval cadets and entered on board H. M. S. Britannia, the training
